PCH Wins 3-Way Victory; Court Backs Zoning Board

Princeton Community Housing had a three-way victory this week. Last Friday, Superior Court affirmed both the decision of the Borough Zoning Board granting a use variance to Princeton Community Housing, Inc., and Borough Council's own action in upholding the Zoning Board when opponents of PCH appealed to Council.

On Monday, Township Committee unanimously upheld the Township Zoning Board's decision to grant a variance for PCH's detention basin. PCH hopes to build apartments for the middle-income elderly on Borough-owned land on Elm Road. The property is on the Borough-Township line, and PCH plans call for a storm detention basin across the line in the Township.

If voters had agreed to consolidate Borough and Township, "we wouldn't be here tonight," commented Township Committee members Gail Firestone and Richard Schoch.

In Friday's decision, Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy ruled that the legal criteria for use variances had been properly met, and dismissed the suit against the Borough.

Later, Borough attorney Edwin Schmierer and the law firm of McCarthy and Hicks, representing PCH, filed a motion asking the Appellate Court to instruct William Barr, the chief opponent of PCH, to file any appeal on an "expedited basis," sooner than the 45 days normally allowed between a Superior Court decision and the filing of an appeal. PCH faces a June 30 deadline with Federal Housing and Urban Development officials for completing plans for the apartments.

If an appeal is filed, it will be by Mr. Barr acting as his own attorney. He is no longer represented by the Gordon Strauss firm.

On Monday night before Committee, Mr. Barr asked Committee to send the question back to the Zoning Board on the grounds that the Board had not addressed the merits of the housing project. Christopher Baker, attorney for PCH, replied that it was "quite impossible" for the Township Zoning Board to consider the merits of something outside the Township's boundary, and Zoning Board attorney Ivan Bash agreed.

No News Is Good News From Township Police

In baseball it would have been a perfect game — no hits, no runs, no errors; for the Township police it was a perfect week — no break-ins, no thefts, no arrests.

"Gentlemen, you aren't going to believe this," Chief Anthony Pinelli told reporters at his weekly Tuesday morning news conference. "I have absolutely nothing."

Even Chief Pinelli was startled. To make sure it was a zero crime week, he double-checked the crime reports and crime docket. The only thing he could find, he said, was a domestic argument — and information of that nature is never released to the press.

There it was: the first crime goose egg in at least two decades of reporting Township crime. Suppose they had a police force and nobody committed a crime ....

Richard Woodbridge to Run For Post of Borough Mayor

Borough Council member Richard Woodbridge announced this week that he will run for mayor of the Borough as the Republican candidate. He was elected last fall to his third term on Council.

He will run against either Barbara Sigmund or Barbara Hill, whichever one wins the Borough Democratic primary. Last week, Borough Democrats chose Mrs. Sigmund by a 4-1 margin over Ms. Hill in the endorsement vote by members of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization.

In the tally, Mrs. Sigmund received 37 votes from Borough Democratic members of PCDO and Ms. Hill received 9. Township members gave Mrs. Sigmund 27 and Ms. Hill 84.

At the end of the evening of votes, Ms. Hill declared that she was still in the race.

For Council, Democrats will run Irv Urken and John Huntoon. The two incumbents, Robert McChesney and Joseph Blanc, will not run. Mr. McChesney is completing his first term. Mr. Blanc was appointed to fill the one year remaining in the term of Nelson Van Den

Coalition of Residents Hopes to Buy Development Rights to Institute Land

A loosely-formed coalition of Princeton residents is negotiating with the Institute for Advanced Study to buy the Institute's development rights.

"It's worth a try," says James Sayen, one of the group. If the coalition is successful, their efforts could forestall the Institute's plans to build 400 houses and apartments on its Quaker Road land.

Institute plans were on the Planning Board agenda for this Tuesday.

According to Mr. Sayen, Harry Woolf, executive director of the Institute, was scheduled to announce to the Planning Board that he is negotiating with a coalition of environmentalists for acquisition of development rights. Dr. Woolf was out of town during the day on Tuesday and not available for confirmation.

A letter from Mr. Sayen to J. Richardson Dilworth, chairman of Institute trustees, was favorably received.

"We've had tremendous interest expressed by Institute trustees," Mr. Sayen stated.

Dr. Woolf is said to agree to hold back for 90 days, while the coalition tries to find backers. The coalition itself is asking the Institute to wait for one year.

A representative of the National Farmland Trust, Douglas Wheeler, met this week with the coalition, and later with Dr. Woolf and with Samuel M. Hamill Jr., executive director of the Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Study Council to discuss possibilities. Mr. Sayen said the group has also been in touch with the Nature Conservancy, and "other sources."

"We might even go public," Mr. Sayen speculated. "Invite people to buy an acre of rights for $10,000. If we could get 50 people .... And there may be state Green Acres money. The Institute needs between $8 and $10 million."

These particular environmentalists are not the only ones concerned about Institute plans. Historians of the Revolutionary War say they are worried about the proposals as they relate to a planned expansion of Battlefield Park, or even Battlefield Park as it now stands.

Also, the Institute woods adjoin the Charles Rogers Wildlife Refuge and the property of the Elizabethtown Water Company. There have been reports that Elizabethtown may give up that facility — although the company will go before the Planning Board next week with plans for an addition to the building there — and other environmentalists are concerned about the fate of the Wildlife Refuge if Elizabethtown leaves. The company leases the property to the municipality.

Henry S. Patterson II, president of Elizabethtown, said this week that the company wants to leave the Wildlife refuge as a bird refuge, and will continue to lease it to the town.

In addition to Mr. Sayen, the coalition includes William Starr, Peggy McNeill, H. Philip Minis, Denyse Reid, Lawrence Norris Kerr, Rosemary Blair, Lee Merrill and Stanley Updike, of the Updike Farm, adjoining Institute lands.

David Dodge Still Missing; Kidnapped in Beirut in July

Last week's bombing of the United States Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon, reminded Princeton residents that David S. Dodge, former acting president of the American University, is still missing, following his kidnapping in Beirut last July. Although he has not been seen, it is thought that he is still alive.

Mr. Dodge, whose family lives in Princeton, was kidnapped July 19 as he walked to his home on the university campus for dinner. According to Western diplomats, the only message from Mr. Dodge was received in September by the Lebanese Red Cross. It is believed by many that he was spirited out of Beirut when Palestine guerrillas and Syrian troops left the capital at the end of last summer.

Nobody knows exactly who his abductors are, but they are thought to be Shiite Moslems who are followers of Ayatollah Khomeini, the Iranian leader. Lebanese newspapers have said that his kidnapping was linked to the disappearance two weeks before of the Iranian charge d'affaires and two members of his staff.

Another opponent, William S. Greenburg of 164 Hunt Drive, pointed to use of the Borough-owned property as a sewer field.

"From the 1880s to this very hour," he declared, "there has been no control from dawn to dusk on what has been disposed of there. I suggest you are sitting on a toxic time-bomb of chemicals that do not break down, never go away, that have been under the surface for 40 years."

He cited arsenic, cadmium, chrome, zinc and potassium, "all of which are part of sewer sludge."

Blink when she resigned from Council last year.

Republicans expect to run Hank Abernathy for Council. He ran unsuccessfully last year. His running-mate was scheduled to be chosen by Republicans this Tuesday in time for the filing deadline at the end of the week.

Mr. Woodbridge, a lawyer and engineer who has a practice in patent law in Princeton, said he felt he could bring a "systematic, business-like approach" to Council business.

"Because I grew up in Princeton, I have a somewhat traditional approach," he said, "but professionally, I am in the 'new-ideas' business — my specialty is getting new ideas off the ground."

As mayor, he said, he would

The chapter, the oldest Red Cross Chapter in New Jersey, is expecting a capacity audience to hear the former Governor address the subject of "Volunteerism in Today's Society." The report of the chapter's activities during the past year will be in printed form and there will be a brief business meeting for the purpose of electing officers and board members. Volunteers will be recognized for past service to the chapter.

The meeting is open to all members of the Princeton Area Chapter including active volunteer workers and all those who have supported the American Red Cross financially through its partner organization, the United Way of the Princeton Area Communities.

Reservations are limited and should be made through the American Red Cross at 182 North Harrison Street or by calling 924-2404.

CORRECTION

In last week's story on Palmer Square in the '30s, it was erroneously stated that John Hoff was president of the First National Bank at that time. It was his brother, Joseph, who was president; however, John Hoff was, as stated, the grandfather of the current president of the bank, also John Hoff.

Hearing on Palmer Square Relatively Quiet, Despite Large Turnout of Opponents to Plans

The protestors were there, and a petition bearing 861 opposing names, but the three-hour Palmer Square hearing before the Planning Board last Thursday went calmly with less fire and steam than had been expected.

The matter is not ended, and the board will continue the hearing on Thursday, May 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Valley Road Building.

Collins Development, owners of the Square, said they are carrying to a later meeting revised plans for the four-story bridge over the forecourt of One Palmer Square. It had been expected that a revision of the awning design would be discussed.

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley, who sits on the board, reminded the audience of the 1978 citizens Steering Committee meetings and decisions on the downtown.

"Their plan, in general concept of density and height, is the equivalent of this Collins plan," the mayor said. "It has been a long-term process, in which many citizens were engaged."

Collins' master architect Do Chung told audience and board that the roofline of the addition to the Nassau Inn across from the present Inn on Palmer Square East, is now a "broken roof," with gable ends, and a facade with indentations and projections; the Witherspoon side of that addition is varied also, he said, with gable ends, chimneys and recesses. Borough zoning regulations prohibit windows on this side of the addition because it is on the property line.

The four-story bridge across Palmer Square East, linking the two parts of the Inn, is now 48 feet wide, Mr. Chung said, down from the original 65. Commenting on a memo from Borough engineer George Olea citing many changes from the original plans, Mr. Chung remarked that such changes were not unusual in a "pre-pre-schematic" drawing.

Landscape architect Arthur Collins Jr., described a "garden feeling" he wants to provide, with columns, lights, and a "richly paved" area in front of the Inn door.

"What does 'richly paved' mean?" Mayor Cawley inquired.

Gravel or flags, with a darker edging of brick, Mr. Collins suggested, and perhaps lighter stone in the middle.

The bridge drew the most in comment and criticism. Mayor Cawley explained that the Borough owns the air rights over Palmer Square East and has been negotiating with Collins about use of them. Board member Margen Penick said she was afraid of granting air rights because it might set "an unfortunate precedent."

The mayor announced this Monday that Council hopes to adopt resolutions on air rights, the lease of land to Collins for the Chambers Street garage and various other agreements, at the regular Council meeting Tuesday, May 10. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall.

A glass bridge connecting the two buildings has been discussed, but never presented in plans. Township Mayor Winthrop Pike, who also sits on the board, remarked "I don't mourn the loss of a closed glass box."

But his colleague, Elizabeth Hutter, questioned the need for the rooms that will be incorporated into the bridge. "Is there need in town for that many hotel rooms?" she inquired.

With a projected 250 rooms, the Nassau Inn is at "the lower end of feasibility," replied Collins vice-president James Harvie. "We are now 83 percent occupied, and that is incredibly high, hotel people tell us."

Questions about redesigning the bridge for more openness were raised, and it was not certain whether the under part of the bridge would be 14 or 16 feet from the street. The difference, apparently, is due to the downward slope of the street.

One questioner asked whether Collins might be required to provide more open space in return for permission to build the bridge. Mayor Cawley told reporters Monday that Collins is already providing more open space than required.

The Borough's open space requirement is 81,529 square feet, the mayor said, and Collins plans show 96,370.

Kay Strong, from the audience, quoted the Environmental Design Review Committee's criticism of the bridge, and the EDRC's comment that Collins either be denied the right to build it, or be required to give something in return.

Sewerage questions were also raised. Olivia Applegate of Random Road protested that "not once" had the Planning Board showed any interest in the health problems posed by Princeton's ancient sewer system, and she warned about the amount Collins' expansion would add to the system.

Mayor Cawley reminded her that Collins must put $400,000 into Princeton's sewer trust fund, to which Borough and Township are each contributing $500,000 for sewer repair.

Everett Garretson, co-owner of H.P. Clayton's, protested removal of some parking spaces in the stretch of street south of the post office.

Plans show Tiger Park extended 10 feet north, with a one-way-east route in front of the post office.

"We need open spaces, not a cutie-type park with a lot of clutter," Mr. Garretson declared, in comment on Mr. Collins' landscape ideas. "We don't need trees along Palmer Square West — there is no space for them. We're not a suburban square."

"Whatever you're going to change, you're going to make people upset," Mr. Garretson continued. "You should minimize these extraneous, cutie changes, and make only the changes that must be made, because it has to work."

The owner of the property on which the Alchemist and Barrister Restaurant stands, and the owner of Chuck's Cafe on Spring, both said they would be glad to see buildings on parking lots.

Commenting on "the 27,000 architects who live in Princeton," Stanley C. Smoyer advised opponents to "accept the Planning Board's decisions in good grace — they are qualified, dedicated people. In a few years we'll be as happy as we are now with this beautiful Square."

EXTORTION ATTEMPTED
Township Family Victims. Two Kendall Park youths are free on bail after arrest by the FBI last week in an extortion attempt against S. Lester Block, Parkside Drive.

Joseph Prestifilippo, a freshman at Trenton State, and Scott John Previte, a blacksmith in Stockton, both 19, are charged with mailing a letter to the Block home in which they threaten the family with "elimination" unless they received $50,000 in cash.

The typed letter said the family had been "extensively watched. We have had the opportunity to observe your children down south. They are SAFE as of now, but are being watched and observed carefully. Killing is an art also, but should be used only when needed."

The youths are charged with following up the letter with four telephone calls to the Block home telling the Blocks how the money was to be paid. In the end, Mr. Block went to a specified public telephone to wait for instructions. He took a package, of undisclosed contents, to an apartment in Kendall Park.

Young Previte was arrested by the FBI at Barrett Garden Apartments the night of April 19, when he allegedly came to get the money. Prestifilippo was arrested soon after, following a search by Princeton Township and South Brunswick Township police using a K-9 squad from the Middlesex County sheriff's office.

According to the FBI, both youths admitted the accusations and implicated a third person.

For each defendant, U.S. Magistrate John Devine set $50,000 surety bonds, which require full payment in cash or property. The youths were held in a New York City detention center for two nights while their parents raised the money. The lawyer representing the pair asked that they be released on their own recognizance but Magistrate Devine refused, calling the charges "nasty, vicious and terrible."

Brooke Is Admitted to Princeton

For more than a week, it was just between Brooke and Jim, a secret that neither wanted to share with the public. Teen-age movie star and model Brooke Shields and Princeton University dean of admissions Jim Wickenden knew whether or not she had been admitted to the Class of 1987, but neither was telling. Wickenden had taken the unprecedented action of mailing the answer to Brooke from his Florida vacation spot, so that word would not leak out through members of his staff. Brooke, who received the news, one or two days after the April 15 mailing date, made no public announcement, nor returned any phone calls.

The Daily Princetonian, which criticized the admissions office in an editorial last Friday for "encouraging rumor and speculation," and "losing its cool over this model-actress," finally collected its cool long enough to ferret out the answer. Brooke had passed along word of her acceptance to classmates at the Dwight-Englewood School, where she is a senior, and the Prince checked with a few of them, including younger siblings of current University students.

It broke the story on the front page of its Monday edition, and University officials confirmed the news later that day. Brooke is one of about 2,200 high school students to be offered admission in next fall's freshman class, and has until May 1 to make up her mind. In the past, the 17-year old actress has said Princeton is her first choice. About half of those accepted are expected to matriculate in the fall.

The Blocks said the FBI has instructed them not to comment on the case.

Preliminary hearing has been set for this Friday. Under Federal extortion laws, mailing a threatening letter carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

'SLAP IN FACE'
Rights Group Tells Council. "Our Commission considers your ending result of this (Lesko) case a slap in the face," the Joint Commission on Civil Rights told Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley and Council members in a letter this week.

The group also states that it has advised men in the public works department to carry the case to state or Federal civil rights agencies.

The letter, signed by chair William H. Scheide and director Joan E. Hill, refers to Council's 4-0 decision on April 12 that they were "uncertain as to whether or not racial slurs had been used" by Bernard Lesko, public works superintendent.

It had been charged by four white employees that he made racial remarks about two black employees, out of their hearing.

Magistrate Devine refused, calling the charges "nasty, vicious and terrible."

It is a true and actual form of therapy, it is the cornerstone of modern physical treatment. Massage constitutes a most effective means of combatting pain due to arthritis, and cannot be substituted. Mechanical massage devices and commercial vibrators are not effective and in fact many times can have damaging results. Properly executed massage has two beneficial effects. The first is a mechanical effect that is found in rubbing, which increases circulation of the lymphatic system, that is the liquid that surrounds and moistens our tissues, eliminating any inflammation of nerves and tendons and accompanying muscle pressure, increasing flexibility and ease of movement. The second effect of massage is that of reflex, consisting above all in relaxing the muscles. Massage has a sedating action and helps to calm pain and tension."

THEFT REPORT
Leave it, Lose It, Leave something unattended and expect it to be stolen is a general rule that several residents flouted last week to their dismay.

A Princeton University student had $120 stolen last week from a pocket of her coat which she had left unattended in Dillon Gym, and another student lost an unattended gym bag from the same gym. It contained $130 in clothing and $10 cash. Both thefts took place between 2:30 and 4:20 in the afternoon.

Between noon and 1 p.m., another university student lost $70 the following day when his wallet was removed from his book bag which he had left unattended on the floor in Dodd Hall.

On Sunday, another victim told police that $10 had been stolen from his wallet in his coat which he had left hanging unattended on a chair in Firestone Library. A woman's blue Head ski jacket, valued at $300, was stolen last week from the locker of a Princeton High School student. Although the locker had been locked, police report there were no signs of forced entry.

Anything on wheels was also a favorite target for thieves last week, as a motorcycle, two 10-speed bicycles and a baby stroller were stolen. The motorcycle, a 1974 blue and green Honda valued at $500, was taken from the rear parking area of the Terrace Club, 62 Washington Road. Locked, it bore a Pennsylvania license plate 016M3.

An unlocked bicycle valued at $160 was reported stolen Monday from the yard of a FitzRandolph home, and another bike was taken from the east side of Princeton High School. It was valued at $130. A $60 baby stroller was taken between 5:30 and 6:30 Thursday night from in front of a Witherspoon Street restaurant. No, police report there was no baby inside the red, white and blue stroller.

Four hubcaps worth $50 each were stolen from the car of a Princeton resident while it was parked Saturday night in the Nassau Inn lot off Hulfish Street.

A new portable stereo cassette radio valued at $109 was shoplifted Monday afternoon from a Spring Street store. Two youths, described as 16-year old teenagers are suspects.

The clerk told police while one engaged her in conversation, the other placed the radio in a red duffel bag. One suspect is described as having blonde hair and was wearing a ski vest and jeans. He was carrying the duffel bag.

The second was described as 5-11, with dark brown hair, wearing a green jacket.

METERS ARE PAINTED

By Vandals. Five Borough parking meters on Nassau Street between Tulane and Vandewater near Hulfish Street and the new Laidlaw building were painted last week by vandals. It was discovered Saturday morning and police said they were painting in such a manner that it would be impossible to tell when they were in violation.

Two tires of the car of a Nassau Street business employee were punctured Monday between noon and 6 p.m. Police added that prior to

Nassau Inn to Close This Summer For First Phase of its Renovation

The Nassau Inn will be closed this summer so that work can begin on the first phase of its renovation. Max Lowe, general manager, said this week that the hotel would probably be closed during July and August, but that it was too early to give specific dates.

The Inn will be open for Princeton University's Commencement and Reunion Week-end. Switchboards will continue to be open while the Inn itself is closed, Mr. Lowe said, so that reservations and conference meeting dates can be scheduled.

If you have already made plans to use the Nassau Inn this summer, Bari Boone of the sales office says that her staff will help you find another place.

Plans call for redecorating some of the public spaces, like the dining rooms, laying new carpeting and buying new furniture. Guest rooms will be fitted with new furniture, linens and appointments coordinated by dePolo Dunbar of New York, Mr. Lowe said.

The Inn must be closed, Mr. Lowe explained, because some of the construction involves changes in the infrastructure: re-designing the kitchen, installing new stairwells and putting in a new boiler plant. Renovations will continue after the Inn re-opens.

the discovery, the victim, a resident of Hamilton Township, had received annoying phone calls at her place of employment.

The passenger side window of the car of a Princeton resident was shattered last week by a blunt instrument while it was parked in a lot off Nassau Street.

CHURCH IS TARGET
Of Bomb Threat. A Nassau Street church received a call last Wednesday afternoon at 2 from a person who wanted $250 to be placed in a mailbox or the church would be blown up by 2:30.

The caller was believed to be a young male, police said.

head, Mr. Friedeborn told Ptl. Robert Buchanan that he was traveling 30 miles an hour when his car went out of control at 1:50 in the morning. His skidding car caused some grass and ivy damage at the property of 19 Greenhouse before striking the pole. There were no charges.

Cyclist Charged. A bicyclist was charged with passing on the right after he was involved in an accident last week on State Road the intersection of Cherry Valley Road.

Eric P. Rose, 21, of New Brunswick, was treated at the Medical Center for minor injuries. According to the report by Ptl. Anthony Gaylord, Mr. Rose was passing a stopped line of traffic on State Road at a fast rate of speed when he collided with a car that was allowed to make a left turn through the line of traffic into a driveway at 873 State Road. Ptl. Gaylord noted that there was no improper driving by the driver, Merry L. Madover, 873 State Road.

The line of traffic had been backed up by a traffic light at the time of the mishap 4:05 Friday afternoon.

CLUB MEMBER PUNCHED
By Trespasser. A member of the Elm Club, 58 Prospect Avenue, was punched in the face late Saturday night by one of three juveniles who were trespassing at the club.

According to police, the club member had asked the juveniles—who were not members and were helping themselves to beer—to leave and when they refused he went to the telephone to call police. As he was calling, he was punched in the face by one of the three who then left the club. The victim refused medical treatment.

The three were described as all about 16 years old. One was 5-11, 140 pounds, with long, straight blonde hair and wearing a red jacket. The second was 5-9, 160, with short, dirty blonde hair wearing green army fatigue trousers and the third as 5-9, 140, with a thin face and long nose, wearing a green shirt. Ptl. John Reading investigated, after police received the 11:20 call.

MAN IS JAILED
For Theft of TV Sets. In Township criminal court last week, Judge Sydney Souter sentenced Anthony K. Bailey, R.D. 4, Lincoln Highway, to 30 days in the Mercer County Correctional Center for the theft of television sets. He was also sentenced to 10 days for contempt of court, the two to run concurrently.

Bailey had also failed to pay fines totalling $250 stemming from previous court appearances. As a result, Judge Souter vacated two previous suspended sentences and re-imposed two 30-day sentences on Bailey on each charge. Bailey was to serve them consecutively for a total of 90 days in jail.

In Township traffic court, Elmer P. Bean, Princeton Arms Apartments, Cranbury, and Georgios N. Kessidis, 159 N. Harrison Street, were each fined $85 for speeding. For careless driving, Edward F. Crane, Cherry Brook Drive, and Lothar B. Sander, 111 Harris Road, each paid $65.

Paulette J. Esposito, 14-06 Quail Ridge, Plainsboro, paid two fines: $265 for driving while intoxicated and $65 for leaving the scene of an accident.

Kim Tyler, 145 Linden Lane, paid $65 for illegal backing or turning in a street.

Borough Court. In Borough court Monday, Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. fined James J. DeRose, 422 Wood Mill Drive, Cranbury, and Peter G. Cano, 26 Woodlane Road, Lawrenceville, $60 each for red light violations.

Veronica A. Brady, 8 Hamilton Avenue, and Elizabeth A. Kennedy, 120 Leigh Avenue, were fined $60 each for making illegal U-turns. Speeding cost Joan M. Trombino of Hopewell, $60, and Robin R. Lattanzio, Revere Road, Belle Mead, $70.

Paying fines for careless driving were Carl F. Skelton, 28-05 Quail Ridge Drive, Plainsboro, $75, and William G. Aust, 161 Franklin Corner, Lawrenceville, $60.

Others: Teena Cahill, 185 Clover Lane, $20, and Gerald F. Boutcher, 100 Stockton Street, $15, both no license or registration in possession (Ms. Cahill pleaded guilty with an explanation); and James R. Hagadorn, Jr., 891 Mount Lucas Road, $15, failure to have inspection.

and council concerning the liquor license of Tash's Liquor Store on Lytle Street, is pending. Chief Michael Carnevale said.

Shortly before 8 p.m., Ptl. Randy Sutton and Ptl. Anthony Federico had observed a car on Lytle Street with five persons inside. After they witnessed one of the occupants go into Tash's and Nassau and Chamber Streets emerge with two cases of beer, the officers stopped the car on Franklin Street.

Police have charged the 18-year old driver, a resident of Laurel Road, and all four away. The person he was juveniles in the car as minors chasing had tried to steal a bike with the aid of another, he said.

The officers put the student in their patrol car and searched the area. One of the suspects was arrested a short while later in the Palmer Square area; the second was arrested after a further search.

The student told the officer that the two suspects had been seen by students in Holder Hall acting in a suspicious manner. They continued to watch them and when the pair tried to wheel a bike out of Holder Hall there was a confrontation between students and the two youths. A fight erupted and the suspects ran off. One of the students observed the officers as he was chasing them.

The Department of Environmental Protection Wants to Know When Harry's Brook Overflows

Municipal officials in Borough and Township have no way of knowing whether sewers linked to Harry's Brook are overflowing.

"Unless somebody calls up to inform us, we never know," says George Olexa, Borough engineer and secretary of Princeton's Sewer Operating Authority. "It is especially hard on week-ends."

The state Department of Environmental Protection is now "insisting" that Princeton inform the DEP and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency of all Harry's Brook overflows as soon as they appear, first by telephone and then by letter. The directive comes in a letter sent to Mr. Olexa last week by Alfred W. Valencia, in the enforcement branch of the DEP.

He also asks that "the tops of overflowing manholes be equipped with a screening device to prevent the discharge of fecal matter and various other material associated with raw sewage, and that a chlorination procedure be developed to disinfect this polluting discharge."

All material on the ground as a result of past overflows, must be removed and the area disinfected, Mr. Valencia writes.

"We clean up, as we always do," is Mr. Olexa's reply. Mr. Olexa said he would refer the letter to the next SOC meeting, scheduled for May 17. Mr. Valencia asked for a reply within 15 days of receipt.

Overflowing sewers on Valley Road are visible to the traffic along that road. Township road crew offices are on Valley Road near the spouting sewers, but Mr. Olexa says there is no "mechanism" for letting municipalities know about the overflow.

The Sewer Operating Committee consists of Borough, Township and University representatives. J.B. Smith, a Township representative, is chairman. Members are Richard Schoch (Township); Richard Macgill and James Combs, Borough; George Glahn and Michael McKay, University.

operations master plan, Trap Rock decided to wait until after Franklin Township's new planning board members were installed rather than begin an application before a board soon to change its composition. Originally, Trap Rock proposed to go before the board in December, then decided to wait until after the first of the year.

APPLICATION POSTPONED By Kingston Trap Rock. Kingston Trap Rock Industries will wait until after the Franklin Township Planning Board has held its May 10 election of four new members before it files a request for the zoning change needed to implement its Master Plan.

At the core of Kingston Trap Rock's ambitious plan to expand its quarrying operations north of Laurel Avenue and to convert the area afterwards to a huge reservoir is a change in zoning to permit mining. The land is currently zoned residential-agricultural.

registers. Bisque baby dolls by Dorothea Heinel will be on display. The sixth house is just outside Pennington on the South Main Street and is an early 19th century two and one-half story frame structure with large bow windows. Susan Wert will display English smocking.

A 19th century barn built in the Pennsylvania Dutch style completes the tour. The wood used in its construction was milled at the mill on nearby Stony Brook. A number of antiques and crafts shops will set up displays for the tour. For further information call Pam Babbitt at 737-0989.

SALE PLANNED

By Rhododendron Society. Home gardeners seeking something different in rhododendrons and azaleas will want to attend the annual plant sale held by the Princeton Chapter of the American Rhododendron Society on Saturday, April 30. At the sale will be many hybrids and species not normally available from regular sources.

The old-fashioned rhododendrons with their dusky lavender-pink flowers have been surpassed by newer hybrids with larger blooms having bright clear shades of white, pink, red, lavender and purple. There are even a few yellows that can be grown here. The newer azaleas have larger flowers and some are even striped with other colors.

The sale will include a wide selection of these newer superior hybrids that has been chosen for suitability for the growing conditions of New Jersey. Included in the offering will be a group of rare Rhododendron species that have been obtained from the Rhododendron Species Foundation. There will be a range of plant sizes from "yearlings" to landscape sizes. Prices will be attractive and will vary according to the size and rarity of the plant.

The Princeton Chapter is a group of people from all walks of life who have a common interest in rhododendrons and azaleas. They use the proceeds of the sale to support their various activities including the display garden at Mercer County College and their annual flower show which will be held at Quaker Bridge Mall on May 21 & 22. Membership in the chapter is open to all interested persons and information will be available at the sale.

The sale will be held next to the display garden located at Mercer County College, 1200 Old Trenton-Edinburg Road, West Windsor Township. Sale hours are 8:30 to 2, rain or shine. There will be no advanced sales or reservations and all plants will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

MAILBOX

Institute's Plan Opposed.
The Editor of Town Topics:
Following is the text of a letter I have sent to the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

I am writing to express my deep love and concern for the Princeton community; as I have lived here all my life.

What incites my concern to be voiced is the proposal for a massive cluster housing project on the land presently "owned" by the Institute for Advanced Study. My writing to you, as Chairman of the Planning Board, is indicative of my belief that upon you have been conferred, by the community, a certain responsibility to keep this town within the margins of balanced development.

This requires mercy, economy and humility. It also demands a hearty degree of dialogue between the citizens, and their representatives, although neither discipline nor compassion can be legislated.

That we have strayed woefully to the extreme of over-development is at once evident in nearly every sector of this region. Until we attain a respectable measure of integral equilibrium, we have no right — any of us — to add significantly to the problem.

What is needed is enough discipline to uphold the welfare of the whole; regardless of how much power or money is vested in the interests of any given part. This is the very quality which enabled George Washington and all the true forefathers of this country to settle this land for western culture.

Who were these men who fought at the battle of Princeton and why were they fighting? They were farmers, essentially. And I believe that they fought for this land with the intent to settle down afterwards and farm it; thereby preserving a heritage for both their ancestors, and the families to follow, by enacting a responsible stewardship of the sublime sustenance, which was grounded in the proper use of the land.

Nothing has since changed. We are all forefathers, all stewards of this land, perhaps now more than ever. What I am urging in this writing is not a judgment as to whether or not such a development is right or wrong; but something entirely more immediate.

I am asking, indeed pleading, that the Planning Board rally to the cry of discriminating discipline by responsibly representing the needs of the local people. This means mustering the strength to say no when a proposal does not meet our true needs, and to defend our needs vehemently, in the face of all violators.

Clearly, very few of us want the development; fewer still could maintain that we need it. The land behind the Institute is perhaps the last vestige in this area which affords ample representation of the Sacred Source. Whether we abuse our rights as nurturers of this Source in the name of Progress or uphold its righteousness, we are still stewards — no more, no less.

Re: 'Open Sewers'

To the Editor of Town Topics:
(The following is a letter to the Planning Board.)

It has been a year since the first time I appeared before this board to express my concern and to make you aware of the serious health hazard our town has been facing and continues to face due to what we can easily call "Open Sewers."

During this year my neighbors and I have brought to the attention of our elected officials the need to do some serious repair work on our town's trunk sewer lines. I have brought before this planning board pictures of manholes surcharging, I have made references about the kind of sewage debris this municipality continues to dump in our streams and the lake. We also have letters from the state addressed to this board that supports our fight.

Not once has the planning board as an entity expressed concern or even shown interest of looking into the serious health hazard caused by the "Open Sewers." Nor are you coordinating your planning efforts with the Sewer Operating Committee, to make certain that the satisfaction you give to developers by approving their proposal does not further exacerbate the surcharging of the sewer system all over town to the complete dissatisfaction, not to mention the destruction of property values, of people who already have settled on the land and have a right to enjoy their lives unmolested.

Now that I have become aware that a strong committee of concerned citizens has been formed to Save Palmer Square and to save the "air rights" of this town, I believe this is the right time to educate our community and to form another strong committee to "Save Princeton's Environment."

My fight to protect our rapidly declining environment will continue with the support of those residents who truly care and with the support from the State. It is sad and hurts to know that members of this planning board who as residents of this town are neglecting the deplorable condition of our sewer system and ignore the serious health consequences this entire community faces in case of an epidemic.

The problem begins every time anyone in this town flushes a toilet, runs a garbage disposal, empties herbicides, fungicides and chemical substances such as cleaning fluids down the drain. All this plus many more discharges run through the dilapidated trunk lines of Princeton. In wet and dry weather these combinations of toxic chemicals plus the sewage exfiltrates into the streams and the lake. The sewer problem is not a community problem, but a number of polluted streams surrounding us plus the close proximity of Carnegie Lake that appears to be dying that constantly reminds us of the seriousness of this health hazard.

I strongly believe that the dumping of raw sewage by such a wealthy and educated municipality as ours is illegal and immoral, not to mention unsanitary and embarrassing.

Time to Rise and Fight.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
Following is the text of a letter sent to members of the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

In talking to a cross section of Princetonians concerning the Institute's development program, I am astonished to find attitudes ranging from apathy to total ignorance that any such plan exists. Mainly there is disbelief. "It can never happen there in the flood plain." But it can and will if an enlightened populace doesn't rise and fight.

To bring the issue forcefully before the public, a landscaped site model of the entire area should be created showing in detail conditions as they exist today and the proposed changes. Ideally this should be an animated model. Press a button. Water flows. See what happens when it storms.

The exhibit should be prominently displayed in the center of town, preferably with a ballot box along side, and reaction thereto should govern the Planning Board's decision. The developers may balk at the cost of meeting this condition, yet it would approximate but one tenth of one percent of the $5 million profit they anticipate, a diminutive figure considering the magnitude of the proposition.

Princetonians virtually en masse shudder in shock at sight of the kiosk. Let them not one day awaken to a fait accompli infinitely more catastrophic and irreversible.

No More 'College Town'?
To the Editor of Town Topics:
Princeton: do you know who you are or who you want to be now?

After reading Kay Bret-nall's story in last week's TOWN TOPICS (pages 1 & 2; April 20, 1983), and viewing that distasteful kiosk at Palmer Square, I signed a petition of the Princeton-Area Committee-to-Save-Palmer-Square (Kay Strong, 921-8076), requesting the Princeton Regional Planning Board to stop further expansion and change of Palmer Square.

Then, after going to the Planning Board meeting last night, I concluded again that our local government bodies here have perhaps reached another crossroads in deciding whether or not we want Princeton to continue being a college town or to become a regional business center?

Over the last 20 years, I have felt that the trouble with Princeton geographically is that it is too close to Trenton (state government and state capital), and not far enough away from New York City (materialism, largeness, aggressiveness, rudeness); last night's meeting made some of us feel this even more than ever!

Mr. Collins and his group appear to be running counter to the wishes of many citizens of this town, as this group appears to be doing in the City of Summit, Essex County, N.J. (pop. about 21,000). Perhaps we should question in greater detail here the accuracy, the motives, the values, of the Collins Development Corp. The city of Summit, N.J. will probably do this, by the way, with a "public presentation" by the Collins group on Wednesday, April 27, "after 7:30 p.m." in the Summit High School, Kent Place Boulevard.

But, in the last analysis, perhaps we should ask ourselves the following questions: do we want and/or can we handle the additional burdens that go with this proposed project by Collins for central Princeton?

If we think that we, with a total borough-township population of 25,718, when the various colleges are in session, do not want and/or cannot handle these additional burdens, with greater volumes of sewerage; fire and police protection; and traffic of people, cars, and trucks, then perhaps we should not take any of this on in the first place.

POETRY READING

At Art People Place, Grace Schulman, visiting poet in the Creative Writing Department at Princeton University and Director of the Y-92 Poetry Center in New York, will read her poetry on Wednesday, April 27, at 8, at the Art People Place, 102 Witherspoon Street. The Poetry Series is sponsored by the Arts Council of Princeton and funded by a grant, in part, from the Mercer County Cultural & Heritage Commission.

Ms. Schulman's book of poems, "Burn Down The Icons," was published by Princeton University Press. Her poems, essays and translations have appeared in many publications, including the New Yorker, American Poetry Review, Poetry and Antaeus. She has been poetry editor of The Nation since 1972. Her poetry is included in several anthologies including A Geography of Poets, A Book of Women Poets from Antiquity to Now, and New American Poetry into the Eighties.

Introducing Grace Schulman, and reading some of her own poetry will be Janet M. Wittler. Her poems have won a first place award from the American Association of University Women and have enabled her to work for Poets in the Schools in New York. Her poetry is most recently found in the book, "The American Poetry Anthology," published this spring, as well as in other anthologies and many small magazines including the Strand in England and The Shore Poetry Anthology in the U.S.A. Ms. Wittler has been responsible for coordinating and directing the series.

NURSES ARE FOCUS

Of PMC Exhibit, The nursing department at Princeton Medical Center will observe National Nurse Day with an open house in the Medical Center lobby, Friday, May 6, from 9-6.

THREE PROMOTED At University. Three personnel actions involving members of the Princeton University administrative staff have been announced following the regular spring meeting of Princeton's board of trustees.

Eugene J. McPartland, 49, has been elected vice president for facilities, effective July 1. Associate Provost Richard R. Spies, 38, who is also a lecturer in economics, has been named vice provost, and Associate Controller Christopher McCrudden, 37, has been given the additional title of director of the budget. Both appointments are also effective July 1.

Mr. McPartland had recently completed service in the Civil Engineer Corps of the Navy when he joined the Princeton administrative staff as general manager of plant in September, 1976. Two years later, upon the resignation of Vice President John P. Moran, he assumed his present position as general manager of planning, plant and properties, and his new post encompassed many of the responsibilities previously held by Mr. Moran.

He has had administrative oversight of the departments of engineering and construction, maintenance, physical planning, real estate and services. In addition he serves as secretary to the trustees' committee on grounds and buildings and has primary responsibility for representing the university's real estate interests before governmental bodies.

Mr. Spies, a 1967 graduate of Amherst College who received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in economics from Princeton in 1972, has held his present post since 1976. He previously had served as assistant provost (1972-76), assistant to the provost (1971-72) and teaching assistant (1969-70). His responsibilities have covered a wide range of functions performed by the Office of the Provost, but with special emphasis on budgeting and resource allocation.

He serves as the executive secretary and chief staff person for the Priorities Committee, a faculty-student-administration committee charged with making recommendations to the president about the university budgets. Working with the provost, he has special responsibilities for the university's computer center, library, space allocation, major maintenance, and the planning and budgeting of capital construction and renovation projects.

Mr. McCrudden spent two years in the budget review division of the Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. before joining Princeton in 1973 as assistant controller for budget and long-range planning. Working closely with the Office of the Provost and the financial vice president and treasurer, he has responsibility for the preparation and analysis of material summarizing the University budget for use by the Priorities Committee. He also oversees the implementation and execution of the approved operating budget.

In 1977, Mr. McCrudden was promoted to associate controller and assumed the additional responsibility of assuring compliance with various government regulations pertaining to the accounting for direct and indirect costs of sponsored research.

A one session color workshop for artisans making items of apparel or interior decorating to sell or for personal use will be held on Thursday, May 12, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The class will be instructed by Elaine Brower, a member of the Artisans Guild and a color consultant for Color 1 Associates.

For further information on either course, call the Adult Department at the YWCA, 924-5571.

PEER GROUPS TO SHARE: Workshop this Saturday. Regarding each other sometimes with suspicion, other times with indifference, public and private school students nevertheless belong to the same age group and have the same concerns.

From Princeton High and Princeton Day School, students in the Peer Leadership Training Program will join with their teachers to sponsor a workshop this Saturday at PDS. Students and teachers will come from schools as remote from each other as Hotchkiss School, Red Bank Regional High, Wardlaw Hartbridge Preparatory and South Brunswick High — among the dozen or that will attend — to share experiences in Peer Leadership Training.

"PDS and PHS are very involved in the same objectives," according to Sharon Powell, who runs Peer Training in both schools. "They want to reach out to freshmen, they're concerned about drug problems expressed last June by David Toma, they're concerned about misconceptions about each other and how these can be changed."

PEER EXERCISE: These Princeton High students, Peer Leaders selected to be role models for freshmen, hold out their arms to receive another Peer, in an exercise designed to build trust. Shown are Laura Lareuse, Chris Sanderson, Paul Knoepfelmacher, Mary Marson, Sylvia Greenspan and Rita Sweeney.

There will be 24 Peer Leaders and four staff from PHS, 20 Leaders and four staff from PDS. Mrs. Powell is coordinator.

In both schools, Mrs. Powell continues, there are black students, members of other minority groups, a cross-section of socio-economic strata. PDS draws students from Trenton and outlying districts and so has more diversity than public school students realize, she added.

In recruiting Peer Leaders, Mrs. Powell says that she strives for diversity: kids deeply into sports, officers of student government, those who write poetry. "I think we've achieved that, in both schools."

The idea behind the Peer Leadership Training Program is that students respond to their peers who are leaders. At Princeton High, Peer Leadership is a credit course which meets five days a week. At PDS, it is a voluntary, three-day course with no credit.

At PHS, it's voluntary for freshmen; at PDS, it's required and is part of the freshman curriculum.

What works at one school, may not at another: the "Give Me Your Best" exercise was very successful at PHS, a flop at PDS. But parent nights have been "hugely" successful at both schools, Mrs. Powell reports.

Students chosen for Peer Leadership are warned that there must be a commitment of time and responsibility. Students are to be in the Peer class every day — "only a fever of 102 will excuse you," Mrs. Powell says — and if you don't attend the fall retreat, then you're out of the group.

"In four years, there has only been one student who left."

School Guide for ages 9-14 uses some original maps, tavern signs and artist's sketches of her in action as she "mist 18th century math, reading in the field on Sunday morning, May 15, at 8.

Created by Constance K. Escher and printed on paper which replicates 18th century linen rag, the guide's cover features an original drawing by Gillette Griffin. Richard Waldron, Assistant Director of the New Jersey Historical Commission, has ordered the guide for the 1983 Teachers Workshop co-sponsored by the Commission and the Society, to be held in the fall.

Prof. Griffin has captured the flavor of 1783 Princeton, which had changed from "a little obscure village" to a capital of America bustling with wagons, coaches and chairs. The famous "sign of the Huddibrass" tavern, formerly located where the Louise Nevelson sculpture now sits on Firestone Library's lawn, was much more than a place for college trustees and delegates alike to "tipple" grog, flip or punch. Taverns as centers of communication, commerce and entertainment are examined by students at the Museum.

Hands-on activities include writing names with quill pens, grating nutmeg — a treasured spice, trying on tricorn hats and aiming a fowling piece. Gallons of hot spiced cider have been consumed by happy visitors.

A second, simplified guide encourages pre-school to second-graders to color a period drawing of the facade of Bainbridge House and the accessories to the taproom. Both guides were funded by two grants from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission and the New Jersey State Council of the Arts.

Besides guides to take home, the Museum also offers books, graphic materials, hands-on objects illuminating the 18th century. Teachers or Scout leaders may sign out for these classroom enrichment materials through the generosity of a Princeton Youth Fund grant awarded to the Children's Museum last March.

The Exhibit will continue through the fall with several special open house events scheduled to celebrate the five months our hometown was the capital of our new country. Teachers are invited to call Bainbridge House, 921-6746, any morning for a class appointment.

TWO PROGRAMS SET By Watersheds Assn. Solar energy can be collected without fancy equipment and costly capital or operating expenses.

John Hutchinson, associate professor of industrial education at Trenton State College, will explain the principles of Passive Solar Design and show slides to illustrate how these principles have been implemented in new and old homes in New Jersey. This program will be conducted on Thursday, May 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association's Headquarters located on Titus Mill Road in Hopewell Township.

Hannah Suthers, ornithologist and researcher, will deliver an interim report on the changes in birdlife diversity and numbers which she has observed and recorded in aging farm fields located on the Sourland Hills of Hopewell. The report, entitled "Old Field Succession

Prof. Eileen Guggenheim will lead a group of students and townspeople on a running tour of the John B. Putnam, Jr., Memorial Collection of contemporary sculpture.

The Sculpture Run has become one of the rites of spring on the Princeton University campus. It provides a way to gain insight into the works of art that are part of the University. Starting at the gates in front of Nassau Hall, the Run moves from sculpture to sculpture, stopping for remarks on each work. Some of the artists represented are Jacques Lipchitz, David Smith, Louise Nevelson, Gaston Lachaise, Alexander Calder, and Pablo Picasso.

The Fifth Annual Sculpture Run welcomes all who are interested, regardless of athletic prowess or knowledge of modern art; comfortable attire is recommended. There will be a reception on completion of the Run in front of the Museum. Commemorative T-shirts are on sale for $5 at the Museum sales desk. For further information, call JoAnn Carchman, Director of Community Relations, at 452-3762.

In 1952, Mr. Bellocq was commissioned by the Laurel Race Track in Maryland to do the advertising, programs and posters for the newly established Washington International Race. Not long after, he was hired by Walter Annenberg as a cartoonist for the Philadelphia Inquirer and, upon the sale of the Inquirer, by Annenberg's Daily Racing Form.

Mr. Bellocq is also kept busy by his own company, which produces posters that he designs and sells. His sketches and murals decorate walls at Meadowlands, Giant Stadium, L.I. Aqueduct and Arlington track outside Chicago.

Some of his cartoons on politics were a part of the personal collection of President Lyndon B. Johnson, who invited Mr. Bellocq to some of the barbecues at the LBJ ranch.

His most recent award is not his first. In 1961 Mr. Bellocq's posters were judged best in a Paris competition sponsored by the International Advertising Art Council. Then, in 1968, he received a prize at Montreal's fifth International Salon of Cartoons.

More recently, in 1980, Mr. Bellocq received a Special Eclipse Award, an award presented to persons having made extraordinary contributions to the sport of racing. His latest honor as Chevalier dans l'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres is in recognition of his contribution to French art and culture.

Emma Epps Named Outstanding Volunteer By Council of Community Services for 1983

At first, you're tempted to call her "feisty," but you realize immediately that the word does not convey the dignity, sinew and strength of this remarkable woman.

Emma Epps celebrated her 82nd birthday April 11, ten days before she walked into The Nassau Club — where she would not have been allowed to enter not too many years ago — to receive the 1983 Council of Community Services Robert E. Clancy award for outstanding service as a volunteer.

Her maternal grandfather was a Masai, seven feet two inches tall. Her paternal grandfather was a Seminole Indian.

Two aunts and an uncle were born in slavery. The last man who owned my grandmother ... she will remark.

Mrs. Epps herself often seems seven feet two inches tall, although she has to raise her eyebrows to achieve five feet. She spoke out against injustice to blacks in days when it was a fearful thing for a black to do. "Anyplace there's a fight going on, I'm usually in it," she says with cheer.

Recounting her fight against Princeton University and the removal of black homes in the mid-'30s to build Palmer Square, she remarks, almost as an aside:

"I'm kind of fiery and I can't take that kind of thing."

Somebody added up the years she has served as a volunteer, and came up with 294. Starting with 56 years on the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, 50 years with the NAACP, 49 years on the Auxiliary Board of the Neuropsychiatric Institute in Skillman, 44 years with the Friendship Club, 28 years on various migrant worker boards, 26 years as a Friendly Visitor at Skillman, 19 years as a Friend of the Public Library, 11 years as a Pink Lady and Auxiliary member of the Medical Center at Princeton, and others. It's her Pink Lady years that probably bring the wryest smile to her face. The hospital, at that time, wasn't much interested in the black ladies of the Friendship Club.

So Friendship members called up the white women they knew in town.

"They talked to the Auxiliary and they took us in," she smiles.

Born in Princeton, sent to school in the south because the high school here did not accept blacks, she was Valedictorian of her class at Danville (Virginia) High School. She started at Lynchburg Theological Seminary and College, but her mother was ill, here in Princeton, and young Emma Greene returned in 1919 to help her mother. Mrs. Joseph Greene died at the age of 35.

It was Mrs. Greene who had started the "Witherspoon Branch" of the YWCA, in 1920, with 15 young black girls as a start.

"The 'Y' concentrated on girls entering high school, to help them choose their courses," Mrs. Epps remembers.

She herself, musical, with a lovely voice, began to take singing lessons at Westminster Choir College. "But they cost $5 an hour. I couldn't afford that! So I left."

She remembers with pleasure those early years of the "Y," years also when she served on the board, along with her mother. The girls

EMMA EPPS IS HONORED: Mrs. Epps holds the silver sculpture presented to her as winner of the 1983 Robert E. Clancy Award for Service as an Outstanding Volunteer. learned to make kid gloves, and learned to type.

They would hike to Devil's Cave — "Route 206 wasn't here yet" — taking their folding tin cups, drinking from the spring, picking flowers. In the winter, there were skating parties on Carnegie Lake, with hot-dogs and marshmallows.

It was in 1948 that she married F. Douglas Epps. He died three years ago at 91. "I still miss him," she says quietly. In the house they shared on Birch Avenue, Mrs. Epps has his photograph, taken by former Princeton photographer Ulli Steltzer. Near it on the wall is a photograph of Martin Luther King Jr.

On the coffee table is a copy of Freeman Dyson's book "Disturbing the Universe." Dyson, a member of the faculty at the Institute for Advanced Study, was a colleague of Mrs. Epps when both served on the Borough-Township citizens committee to study DNA research, and he has inscribed her copy, "to my friend."

It was Princeton University that was chiefly involved in DNA, although the committee had to consider the possibility that other institutions might do DNA research in the future. Always flinty and tough where the University is concerned — there are those Palmer Square memories, and the relationship between Douglas Epps and the University during his years as chef — Mrs. Epps voted "no."

"My conscience tells me to say no," Dr. Dyson quotes her as saying.

At last Thursday's luncheon, Mrs. Epps received the small abstract sculpture in silver that is the Clancy award, and stood to acknowledge the award and say "thank you."

"I'm not going to say much," she began, and then paused. "My friends will be surprised to hear me say that." Because Emma Epps is renowned as a talker.

ARBOR DAY —
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

As Spring slowly unfolds, we approach a holiday which should become more and more important in today's world ...

ARBOR DAY. In New Jersey, Arbor Day is the last Friday in April. In the light of the whole catalog of modern-day environmental ills, the need for maintaining trees and green areas becomes most essential. New Jersey has thousands of acres of idle land — land not suited to crops, other than trees. On these acres landowners are planting over a million trees a year, for forest products and soil and water conservation. Additional thousands are being planted for ornamental purposes. Some towns have acquired land for community forests. These wooded areas are managed mainly for recreation, but forest products and water conservation are useful byproducts.

Why not join others all over the country and give a tree to someone you love? What a thoughtful way to say you care! Why not call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for all your tree care needs?

P.S. The creepy crawlies are coming — it's time to have your trees sprayed!!!

RELIGION In Princeton

CELEBRATION PLANNED
To honor Israel's independence, the Jewish Center invites the community to a weekend celebration of Israel's 35 years of independence. The celebration is sponsored by the Center and Jewish organizations in the community.

On Friday evening, Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt, spiritual leader of the Jewish Center, will lead the congregation in Sabbath services, followed by a performance by the Center Choir of Israeli music. An Oneg Shabbat will follow.

On Saturday at 9:15 p.m. the celebration will continue with "Food, Fun and Frolic, Israeli Style." Traditional Middle Eastern foods will be served, and the Doron Maigners Continental Orchestra will provide live entertainment. A fee to cover costs will be collected at the door.

A bus will leave the Jewish Center Sunday at 9:15 a.m. for the traditional Israeli Day Parade in New York City. Transportation is available on a first-come, first-served basis. The community is welcome to all these activities. For more information call the Jewish Center at 921-0100.

FELLOWSHIP DAY SET
By Church Women. Church Women United will celebrate May Fellowship Day on Friday, May 6, at noon at All Saints' Church. Luncheon will be served.

The theme this year is "There's a Balm in Gilead." The service was written by women from black denominations, and the singing of spirituals will be featured. Music will be provided by Gloria Frederick and Sarah B. Harris.

The program will also feature speakers from four different programs in the community in which women are working to help others. These include the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation, the Crisis Ministry, centered at Nassau Presbyterian Church, and Princeton Community Housing. In addition, Loy Carrington will speak on youth needs in the area. Church Women United is a national movement of Christian women from Protestant, Catholic and Orthodox backgrounds. It invites women to come together for worship, study, action and prayer.

Reservations may be made through area churches, or tickets may be purchased at the door for $3.50.

PIANIST TO PLAY
At Nassau Christian Center, Vincent Di Mura, pianist and composer, will present a piano concert at Nassau Christian Center on Saturday, May 7, at 7:30. The program will consist of Toccata by Bach-Busoni, Sonata by Beethoven, Preludes by Debussy, Passacaglia by Copland, and Sonata by Grieg.

Mr. DiMura, 22, a resident of Middlesex, is a pianist, composer, transcriber, and teacher. A graduate of Manhattan School of Music, he is currently a student of Constance Keene and Marc Silverman in New York and a composition student of David Noon's. The winner of many awards, he has performed several times at Carnegie Recital Hall. In 1977 he attended a special seminar on piano performance with Jean Paul Seville in Perpignan, France, where he also performed.

The public is invited to attend. Admission is free - an offering will be taken. Nassau Christian Center is located on the corner of Nassau and Chambers Streets. For more information call 921-0981 or 452-2828.

GROUND-BREAKING SET
By Jewish Center. The first major renovation of the 24-year-old Jewish Center of Princeton will begin with a groundbreaking ceremony Sunday, May 8. The public is invited to attend the 1 a.m. ceremony.

Changes in the Center, located at 457 Nassau Street, will include construction of a new sanctuary and doubling of the size of the religious school. Cost of the project will be $2 million.

Among the changes will be a resurfacing of the brick-faced structure with Jerusalem stone. The project also will include a new library of Judaica and the building of a senior citizens' "drop-in center."

Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt, spiritual leader of the congregation, noted that "the renovation marks the evolution of our Center as a local point of religious and community life for the growing number of Jewish families in the Princeton, East and West Windsor, Lawrence and Montgomery Townships. Not only do we look forward to better serving our members, but to an enhancement of our role in the broader community."

Alvin E. Gershen, general chairman of the development committee and a past president of the Center, commented that the project reflects the steady growth of the congregation from a membership of 80 families in 1959 when the facility was erected to its current membership of 485. Dr. Zola Horowitz is co-chairman of the Development Committee.

An important aspect of the project will be the selection of a number of art works for display in the Center. The arts inclusion committee is headed by Judith K. Brodsky, an area artist who also is acting associate provost of Rutgers University in Newark.

Edward Enourato & Sons of Trenton is the general contractor. Abraham Goodman of Linden is the architect.

MISSION CONFERENCE
At Westerly Road Church, 37 Westerly Road, will hold its 14th Annual Missionary Conference beginning Thursday evening, through Sunday evening.

The theme of the conference is "Faithful To Teach Others Also." (II Timothy 2:2). The main speaker will be the Rev. Les Thompson, director of Logoi, Inc., with headquarters in Miami, Fla. Logoi's goal is to train national pastors in Central and South America to minister to their own people. Six other missionaries and two missionary candidates will also participate.

The conference goal of $4000 will be used in part to assist the staff of the Word of Life Bible Institute in Brazil, assist the training of pastors in Central America, and to renovate a library for a Bible College in Zimbabwe, Africa.

For more information on the missionary conference, call 924-3816.

CHINA DECORATING
At Cranbury Church, St. David's Episcopal Church, Cranbury, will present a China Decorator's exhibit and sale on Saturday from noon until 5 in the newly complex church building, located on Cranbury-Hightstown Road. Work by artists from the Central New Jersey-Delaware Valley area will be featured.

The art of decorating on porcelain and bone china is an ancient one that flourishes today, among a relatively few, dedicated artists. It was a popular pastime for women in the Victorian and Edwardian eras, but with World War I, the necessary materials became scarce and it wasn't until after World War II with the advent of new and plentiful materials that the art began to grow in popularity once again.

A variety of porcelain pieces will be exhibited, including traditional plates, tea and coffee pots, pitchers, vases, decorative boxes, trays, pictures and jewelry. Antique examples of china painting will also be displayed.

Refreshments, prepared by the women of St. David's, will be available at the tea table. Admission is a $2 donation.

BULLETIN NOTES
Trinity Church, Crescent Avenue, Rocky Hill, will hold a smorgasbord supper Saturday from 4:30 to 7:30. Tickets are $5.50 for adults and $2.75 for children under 12. For tickets, call (201) 874-3797, evenings.

The Princeton League of Women Voters Marks 50 Years of Involvement in Community Affairs

Fifty years ago... it was held a job without being in still, in Princeton, the era of clear violation of that protocol, even if she were writing calling cards. In this "sleepy country town," there was a closely-knit upper class, and its focus was Princeton University.

In the home of Mrs. William Meredith one afternoon there was a gathering of ladies. Most were faculty wives. Those who were, had all experienced that wet-palmed day when, as a new faculty wife, they had been called upon by the wives of professors in their husband's department, ladies in hat and white gloves who remained for 15 minutes, left engraved cards, and departed.

The call had been returned. Dinners were exchanged, sometimes a harrowing experience for a young wife without a butler or maid, perhaps without even a full set of dishes.

For these bright, but frustrated young women, the meeting in Julia Meredith's house opened a new world. The proposal: to form a chapter in Princeton of the Social Club Also. Although the stated purpose of the group was "to help educate citizens," the League was described as "a social club with some intellectual aspirations," and the 1933 roster included an Entertainment Committee.

Mrs. Karl Pettit closed the 1934 annual meeting by announcing that those who wanted to remain for bridge, would be accommodated in the lounge.

League President Dorothy Riefler, who took office in 1938, has been credited with "making the ladies of Princeton take the League seriously," and gradually the social atmosphere faded away.

One of the League's first projects was a public meeting where candidates for office mobilization. Almost from the first, there had been a rubbing, a friction, between the concepts of study, and of action. By the end of the war, however, the League no longer had that "lady-like idea of studying, without pressing for action."

Post-War Changes. Princeton had changed. The town was growing. Ridicule killed the stilted protocol at the University. The Borough elected Minot C. Morgan Jr., its first Democratic mayor, in 1948. (He was later to be an important supporter of the League's housing committee.)

The League, grew, too. By 1947, it had 273 members, most of whom wanted action. Membership was still weighted on the side of faculty wives. Working women had little time, although Firestone librarian Hazel Benjamin became a League president. Women who were not well-educated sometimes admitted privately that they found the League rather intimidating.

There were few black members, although in the 1940s, a few black teachers joined.

In those post-war years, the League sponsored lectures in economics and inflation by John Kenneth Galbraith, who was living in Princeton at the time, and by Paul Strayer. It was suggested by these speakers that perhaps League members might write their views to Congressmen for "action."

In 1948, the League began "Know Your Town," another League tradition which has continued over the years.

Consolidation Supporters. League members came out of their shell fighting, with the issue of consolidation of Borough and Township.

Consolidation was the League's tradition prime, driving interest of the League from the late '40s until the smashing defeat of November, 1953, and even that defeat, many members felt, brought League members closer together.

It began, in a way, with a proposal in 1946 for a joint Borough-Township planning board. The Township was outraged: "We don't want a lot of outsiders (from the Borough) coming in and doing our planning for us," one objector said.

The proposal was eventually voted down.

Throughout 1952 and 1953, the League members met to study late '30s, the first serious subject of a single notice the Princeton community gave the League came through a group formed to 100 League members had mobilize support for low-cost volunteered to work on the housing. The need for such campaign.

"Be as stubborn as your opponent by most of Princeton, ponents, but avoid bitterness although Gerard B. Lambert and controversy," was the had built ten low-cost apartments with his own money in 1938.

It was a subject the League would return to with vigor Benjamin, Margaret Sprout, after World War II. Margaret Alice Tucker.

Citizens Group Formed. On December 11, 1952, the League invited other groups in town to form a citizens group. Bernice Miller chaired the meeting. Those present included Stanley C. Smoyer for the Republican Club; Alan Carick, a former member of the Borough Planning Board; Lester Tibbals, head of the American Veterans Committee; Margaret Sprout, past president of the League.

But bitterness and controversy did indeed lie ahead. The League had never studied the role of women in

News Of The THEATRES

'A SOLDIER'S TALE'
Combined Talents. In a production combining the musical abilities of the Princeton University Orchestra, the architecture talents of Michael Graves and the choreographic skills of Geulah Abrahams, three Princeton University entities will join to sponsor a production of Igor Stravinsky's "A Soldier's Tale" May 5-8 and 12-14. The ballet will be given in Murray Theatre, with an 8:30 curtain each night.

Sponsors are Theatre Intime, the Friends of Music and the Program in Theatre and Dance at the University. A seven-piece instrumental ensemble chosen from the Princeton University Orchestra, will play the landmark music Stravinsky composed in 1917. Michael Pratt will conduct. Costumes and sets have both been designed by architect Michael Graves, who recently designed the Jeffrey Ballet's production of "Fire." Ms. Abrahams, dancer and choreographer as well as teacher in the Program in Theatre and Dance, is directing and choreographing the production.

This old-fashioned melodrama was originally produced by the Players in their first season in 1933. This is the third time it has been revived as an anniversary production — first for the silver anniversary in 1958 and again ten years ago for the 40th.

Director Herbert McAneny will have old-timers and newcomers in the cast. Jim Hopkins will play again the part he played 25 years ago, and Marie Miller will recreate her role of a decade ago.

Between the acts, the Players will revive the custom of the Olio of musical interludes. Tunes from the turn of the century will be directed by Earl Carhart.

The Narrator will be Elisabeth Pederson. An alumna of the University who danced and acted during her undergraduate years, she was a resident member of the Yale Ensemble Company last summer.

"A Soldier's Tale" is about a soldier on leave who meets the devil. He is offered the chance to give up his present life for the life of a rich man. He decides to change, but complications disrupt his newfound happiness and he is finally left with nothing of value.

James May, a member of the Theatre and Dance faculty and also a soloist with the Daniel Lewis Dance Company, will dance the role of the Soldier. Mark Metcalf, who has appeared in the New York Shakespeare Festival and in productions at McCarter Theatre, will play the devil. The part of the princess will be danced by Kiku Loomis.

Tickets, ranging from $6 to a $3 student admission, may be reserved by calling 452-8181.

WATCH OUT, BELLE!
Vampires in Chicago. For its 50th anniversary production, Princeton Community Players will delve into the trunk and bring out "Belle the Typewriter Girl, or The Vampires of Chicago."

The curtain will go up Friday, May 6 at 8:30 at the Playhouse theatre, 171 Broadmead. "Belle" will play again that Saturday and Sunday and again May 13-14 and 20-21. Sunday curtain-time is 7:30.

It's a Cabaret, presented by the PTO of Community Park School to raise money for the playground. Date: Friday, May 6; curtain-time: 8 p.m. sharp (you know how school teachers are); place: Community Park School — where else? Admission: $5 per couple, which includes all the wine you can drink. THOSE TRIANGLE BEAUTIES: Jake and Tom, and all the rest, gussied up for "Under the Influence," the 1983 Triangle Club musical opening this week-end at McCarter. They're probably getting ready to organize themselves into the traditional kick-line, but you'll have to go to McCarter to find out. From left: Tom Cott, Gene Lewin, Jake Munes, Zandy Nalle and Elliot Sternfeld.

PROMISE: SURPRISES

With Momix Company, "We reserve the right to change our minds," says the head of the Momix dance company. Hence: no advance program information.

Momix, which grew out of the Pilobolus, includes two veterans of that pioneer company in addition to the Momix founders, Moses Pendleton and Alison Chase. In fact, one of the Pilobolus veterans is Princeton senior Mariann also a member of the Paul Taylor Company.

'GULLIVER'

Experimental Style. Using a giant grid where actors follow and then shatter communication patterns, as they are bombarded by dance, music, synthetic sounds, masks and a wide variety of other stimuli, a cast of Princeton University students will present this weekend a workshop project based on "Gulliver's Travels."

Four performances will be given, from this Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m. The stage is The Acting Studio, 185 Nassau. In September, the production will be given in Scotland at the Edinburgh Festival.

Princeton University's Triangle Club continues a tradition begun in 1889, when the first Triangle musical was presented by University undergraduates. "SECAUCUS SEVEN"
At Kresge, it's a summer week-end reunion of friends who grew up together in the activist '60s. Ten years later, they gather for a house party of basketball, nostalgia and skinny-dipping.

"Return of the Secaucus Seven" will be shown at Kresge Auditorium, Washington Road, next Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:30 and 9:30 each evening. This is a return for "Return", whose booking date last year coincided with the April blizzard that closed Princeton down for a time.

In the film, the 30-ish subjects find that their former idealism has shifted, as they face a practical world. They try to face their future, and hold onto their shared visions of the past at the same time.

THE ACTING COMPANY
In "Tartuffe," Actor John Houseman started The Acting Company in 1972, when he was head of Juilliard's drama division, because he felt that the actors in his first graduating class were too good to disband. He formed them into a professional company, which has since become the touring company of the Kennedy Center in Washington.

They will play McCarter Theatre next Thursday, May 5 at 8 p.m., in a single performance of Moliere's comedy, "Tartuffe." The play will be presented in the English verse translation of poet Richard Wilbur.

Alumni of The Acting Company include Kevin Kline, Patricia LuPone, David Ogden Stiers and Leslie Gerazi.

The University Orchestra Under Michael Pratt Gives Impressive Performance of the 'Eroica'

This past weekend the Princeton University Orchestra performed the last of this season's concerts at Alexander Hall on the university campus.

Under the direction of Michael Pratt, the orchestra played a varied program which included the world premier performance of a work by Princeton University graduate student Lee Blasius, three Mozart arias sung by Richard Mellon and Jacquelyn McNeill, also students at the university, and culminating with a stunning performance of Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony.

Lee Blasius is currently a Ph.D. candidate in composition at the university. His piece, "Hold/Darken Slowly," was written specifically for Pratt and the orchestra. The work is an interesting mix of tonal and atonal elements infused with much chromaticism, and sounding at times like a bridge between Mahler and early Schonberg, but still distinctly Blasius.

The work takes its name from stage directions found in the score of Mozart's Don Giovanni, at the junction of the last two scenes of the opera. The composer felt that Mozart's chromatic setting of the penultimate scene is not allowed to meld smoothly into that of the next. Thus, Blasius' music is an attempt to carry the feeling developed musically in the earlier scene over into the finale, or as the composer put it, to "flesh-out this sense of what lingers on when the old music ends and the new begins."

Pratt's reading of the piece was fluidly executed, although one was left with the feeling that subsequent hearings were necessary to grasp the full impact of the work's intent.

The set of arias which followed Blasius' piece served both to contrast and complement that work. Pratt drew on the talents of two university undergraduates to perform three arias from operas by Mozart. The first, "Ilai gia vinta la causa," from Le Nozze di Figaro, featured baritone Richard Mellon, a geology student who will soon be doing graduate work in opera.

Mellon does not have a particularly powerful voice, and it was sometimes overshadowed by the orchestra in loud passages. However, his tone was rich and well focused, and he projected a good sense of the aria's dramatic essence.

Next, Jacquelyn McNeill, a biochemistry major, took the stage singing "Ach, ich fühl's" from Die Zauberflöte. Her delicate soprano voice was consistent and very controlled throughout her range, and carried well within the hall. The final aria was a lyric duet, "La ci darem la mano," from Don Giovanni.

Most impressive in this concert was the orchestra's performance of Beethoven's Symphony No. 3 in E flat (the "Eroica"). This piece posed a great challenge to Pratt's fine young orchestra, and this challenge was met with fortitude and determination. While there were moments when the ensemble suffered slightly from strings which pushed the tempo, the overall effect of the performance was one of heroism and grandeur.

The orchestral sound in this work was full and colorful. The strings had a pleasing, polished sound which was somewhat lacking in brilliance but solidly unified in tone and ensemble. The winds were superb. The first-chair soloists could not have performed more expressively, especially in the second movement, and the horn trio in the Scherzo was truly magnificent.

The Finale of the symphony was played very skillfully with painstaking attention to every detail. One could not help but savor the long and exquisitely paced crescendo in the closing bars of this movement's slow section.

Pratt has a way of getting young performers to aspire to great musical heights. His work with the Princeton University Orchestra in this concert demonstrates his commitment to providing musical experiences of the highest calibre for these students.

FINAL CONCERT SET By Little Orchestra. The Little Orchestra of Princeton will present its final performance of the season Sunday, May 8, at 3:30. The concert is sponsored by the Society for the Performing Arts at Trinity Cathedral, 801 West State Street, Trenton.

The program will feature four distinguished soloists in works by Monteverdi, Hindemith, and the French composers Francis Poulenc and Michel Corrette.

Nancianne Parrella will be the soloist in the Poulenc Concerto for Organ, Strings and Timpani. Ms. Parrella has appeared with the Mostly Mozart Festival, the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, the Pittsburgh Symphony, and the Spoleto Festival both in the U.S. and in Italy.

The Little Orchestra and Ms. Parrella collaborated in a previous performance of the Poulenc year and a half ago and were asked to repeat the performance.

Soprano Judith Nicosia will sing the Prologue of Monteverdi's early opera "L'Orfeo," following a Toccata introduction for brass instruments, strings, harpsichord, and organ. Ms. Nicosia has received numerous vocal awards and fellowships from Hi Fidelity Musical America, Tanglewood, and the Paris International Vocal Competition. She is on the faculty of Westminster Choir College.

Doris Loder of Philadelphia will be the viola soloist in Hindemith's "Trauermusik," written on the occasion of the death of King George V of England. Ms. Loder has been soloist with the Orchestra Society of Philadelphia, and performs regularly with the Reading, Trenton, and Wilmington Symphonies.

Conductor Portia Sonnenfeld programmed the Hindemith piece to follow the Monteverdi after discovering unexpected similarities between the two works, which were written over 300 years apart. The Little Orchestra will also perform works by two rarely performed Baroque composers, beginning with the very brief English composer William Boyce, which combines pairs of trumpets and oboes with strings and timpani.

Jay Rosenfeld will be the flutist in the Concerto for Flute, Organ and Strings by the 18th century French composer Michel Corrette. Ms. Rosenfeld currently performs with the New York Cameraata, Continuum, and the New York New Music Ensemble, as well as the Trenton and Delaware Valley Symphonies, and teaches at Princeton University and Westminster Choir College. She was first flutist with the American Symphony Orchestra under Stokowski, and toured South America with the Robert Shaw Chorale.

This concert is funded in part by a grant from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission and the New Jersey State Council on the Arts. Admission will be $5 at the door. For further information call 392-3805 or 924-7451.

A GARDENER'S DELIGHT
Obal's on Alexander Rd. At long last the time has come to dream of warm sunny days, lazing alone in the hammock or entertaining good friends in one's treasured garden, whether it be a tiny terrace garden or a beautiful spacious one. Spring is the gardener's delight. There is a certain joy and romantic feeling about choosing flowering plants, shrubs, and trees, a never-ending challenge of timing and care for the novice and seasoned horticulturist alike.

After several consecutive weekends of rain, people are now flocking to Obal's Garden Market Inc. on Alexander Road to select from the wonderful array of perennials, annuals, ground covers, flowering trees, and hardy shrubs that await the shopper. The Obal family has been assisting Princeton customers in planning their gardens for the past 40 years so clients know they can always count on their experienced advice.

Mr. Walter Obal, his son, and the market's fine staff are always willing to spend time planning a garden with their customers though they may have to wait their turn during these busy spring weeks - especially on the weekends when the crowds are heavy. Obal's is however almost a social event during April, May and June where friends meet each other after the long winter months.

"We have never charged for our advice, even when we go out to various private homes and plan a garden or tree plantings. Our people know by now the kind of work we do, that we won't sell them something that isn't appropriate for their garden," explains Mr. Obal, who manages the market with great expertise. His uncle, Mr. John Obal, has worked as a landscape architect here in Princeton for many years. The market offers complete landscaping and contracting services and free consultations to steady customers. However, no job or gardener's problem is too small to merit undivided attention. Business has quadrupled for the Obals since they moved to Alexander Road 18 years ago.

Planning is crucial. Any novice gardener who has had a few failures such as a tree or shrub dying or a mismatch of sizes and colors in the flower garden will know by now that gardening takes a great deal of knowledge and planning. Beautiful gardens seen all over town do not just happen, but evolve slowly over the years with experimentation. Obal's has a good selection of paperback books to study and a fine collection of gardening tools to make the wearisome task of spring clean-up and garden maintenance more pleasant.

The Wilkinson Sword tools are the finest made, according to Mr. Obal who recommends their trowels, clippers, hand forks and cultivators to mention a few as gifts for the avid gardener who will appreciate the finest quality. A good assortment of every imaginable tool at reasonable prices can also be found in the shop, along with a wide array of handsome containers for indoor plants which will soon be put outside on the terrace or porch. Plant hangers, window shelves, and plant tracks will display lovely flowering plants purchased this spring or those which have been nurtured through the winter.

There is always a temptation in April to rush to Obal's and buy quantities of colorful geraniums, begonias, and pansies (which were covered by snow last week!), but first things first is the advice of Mr. Obal. The rains have inhibited the springtime clean-up for many weekend gardeners who might have finished these necessary chores already. Soil preparation is key to successful trees, shrubs, flowers, vegetables, fruits, lawns, vines and even houseplants. Obal's Garden Market is filled to the brim with bags of indoor and outdoor fertilizers, soil conditioning organics, lime, sand, peat moss, charcoal and humus, potting soil, and cactus mix so essential to hardy planting and flower, herb and vegetable beds. Once the soil and lawn is well-prepared, the fun begins. Perennials can be moved if desired, making room for additional ones found at the market. The selection is vast. Hundreds of flats of annuals are already in stock, but Mr. Obal warns his customers not to plant the less hardy ones until mid-May.

Geraniums in Stock. Geraniums in white, varying shades of pink, orange, coral and red at $2.50 each are now arriving twice a week at Obal's. They will look stunning and bloom all summer long in the shop's new tubbies, octagonal wooden tubs made of cypress and banded in stainless steel ranging in size from 8 to 36 inches in diameter. Tubs in redwood and terracotta are also available as are the popular half barrels. Geraniums combined with petunias and ivy will take a minimum of care for the next several months.

Glorious indoor houseplants such as the non-stop (blooming) begonia and the African violet are a good investment for those who love flowers around them all year.

Summer blooming bulbs of hanging begonias, dahlias, cannas and gladiolas, all of which bloom eight weeks after planting can be staggered, thus blooming through autumn, says Mr. Obal.

A vegetable garden can be ornamental as well as edible. Some choose the sunniest spot right in front of their home. Mr. Obal can tell the shopper what will look pretty as well as taste wonderful all summer. There is much to learn. Seeds by Burpee, Ferry-Morse and Harts are in full stock as are flats of herbs and vegetables. Some, such as beets, can only be grown from seed. Obal's has two year old cuttings of asparagus which will yield next year and last for twelve more.

A sampling of an attractive vegetable garden might be marigolds, nasturtiums, and sunflowers bordering an array of veggies and fruits. The hearty plants such as peas, spinach, lettuce, onions, shallots, radishes and broccoli can be planted now while tomatoes, cucumbers, and beans should wait a bit.

The flowering trees have finally blossomed. Go to Obal's and choose a lovely weeping cherry or one of the other varieties of cherry, crabapples, dogwoods, and flowering pear trees. The stock of trees includes: white pine; hemlocks; evergreens; spruces; spreading and upright junipers; apple, peach, pear and plum trees.

Azaleas in all shades of white and pink and the whole spectrum of rhododendrons can be viewed in full bloom. Obal's is definitely a beautiful place to shop this month.

TREE MAINTENANCE
Specialty of Woodwinds. The purchase of beautiful new trees and shrubs to enhance the appearance of one's home can be an exciting experience, but perhaps a more important exercise is the care and maintenance of the property's existing landscape. There is a company in town which provides professional expertise in this field, and which has enjoyed great success since its inception 16 years ago.

Mr. Sam deTuro began his aptly named business, Woodwinds, after several years of training and experience with the Bartlett Tree Expert company, a national concern which he helped to expand into several representative offices across the country after graduating from Penn State University in forestry and horticulture. There he learned his trade and became convinced that preventative maintenance is enables trees and shrubs to resist many types of insects the desired goal in this field, rather than the business of "hacking down trees and knocking off limbs."

TREE SAVER: Treating the causes of the infectious diseases which attack trees in the Princeton area is important to Mr. Sam deTuro, President and owner of Woodwinds of Kingston.

"I believe that this is how we differ from other firms. We identify and diagnose infectious diseases which harm trees and shrubs and treat their causes rather than their effects. We are into prevention and control here," Mr. deTuro explains.

Preventative maintenance can include many stages of treatment. A tree must be fed, according to Woodwind's president. When it is well-fed, it is much more disease-resistant and better able to withstand attack. The Woodwinds method of liquid feeding is a slow-release fertilizer which provides up to two years of continuous feeding and can be applied at almost any time of year. Special equipment is used to apply the fertilizer efficiently, thus cutting the cost of feeding in half.

Year 'Round Protection. Woodwinds, located in Kingston, is by no means a seasonal business. The company's trucks are seen all over town all winter long spraying a non-toxic anti-desiccant spray which protects evergreens from the cold, dry winds which evaporate moisture and thus dry leaves and needles. It is now too late in the year for dormant spraying with the non-toxic oil base spray which all year long. The dormant spraying is the safest method of protecting many trees because it contains no chemicals and is approved by all leading conservationist groups.

Two other preventive methods used by Woodwinds are sophisticated chemotherapy, and lightning protection.

Woodwinds is open six days a week but has a twenty-four hour emergency service when storm damage clean-up is often necessary. The company has a contract with Amtrak during the winter months removing snow and ice from stations, bridges, trestles and tunnels, a boon to our Princeton commuters.

Specialized spraying is unfortunately necessary throughout the summer months when trees and shrubs can be attacked and defoliated by a variety of pests such as the gypsy moth, the woolly aphid, or the inch worm. Spraying is tailored to the needs of the area, and Woodwinds does considerable research in places which it services regularly, such as Marquand Park. There Mr. deTuro and his staff can watch closely for area pests as there is a greater variety of trees and shrubs present in the park than any other place in Mercer County.

Because the residuals of the chemicals used to combat these infectious pests last only five to seven days, the timing of spraying is important. Woodwinds has hundreds of steady customers whose properties it sprays on a regular basis while the company tries with some difficulty to work into its schedule new or one-time customers. It would be wise to contact Woodwinds early in the season.

Saving Trees. There is nothing sadder than to see a magnificent old tree felled by a storm or from abuse. Woodwinds recommends at least three areas for corrective treatment: pruning; cavity treatments; and bracing and cabling.

A tree which is pruned properly is not only more beautiful, but healthier and less susceptible to infection. When it comes to tree removal, Woodwinds assures expert results.

A small part of Mr. deTuro's business includes custom landscaping. "Our work is geared to jobs and plants beyond the norm. We might have to go to Maryland, Virginia, Connecticut, or Long Island for a specific type of tree. We don't sell them but deal with many sources, including nurseries which sell mature trees, he says. One example of an unusual tree procured by Woodwinds are two matching sterile pear trees, three stories high which flank the entrance to a foundation building in town.

Many customers feel comfortable with the expertise they find at Woodwinds and only want the company to assist them in landscaping their property. Mr. deTuro emphasizes that it is a custom service only. He and his staff spend many hours visiting homes and commercial properties, however, consulting and working out a program for maintenance for their customers.

Mr. deTuro usually plans a study trip twice a year in conjunction with courses he takes at the National Arborist Association's conferences. Like most fields, knowledge of forestry and horticulture is ever-expanding and there is much to learn. Woodwinds runs a ten-week seminar in mid-winter for its staff members and invited guests to keep abreast of new developments.

ART In Princeton

THE AUTO AS ART
Display at Squibb. The automobile is probably the most significant of all the major inventions of the past hundred years. The near-miraculous turn-of-the-century machine has changed the way we live, reshaped everything from recreation to business and its use patterns have played a major role in determining how America looks today.

Until recently, the auto was not a dominant theme in our art. Although it has been a favorite subject for illustrators and photographers ever since the first vehicle chugged down the road, it is only in recent years that fine artists, painters, sculptors and printmakers have looked upon the car as a suitable subject for their work.

The attraction of the automobile as both subject and art form is easy to understand in the exhibition, "Free Wheeling": a display of nearly 100 auto-related works on view at The Squibb Gallery. It is not necessary to care about cars in order to enjoy the mixed media collection that provides a wide track view of the thundering power, classic appeal and pure fun associated with the prized possession of so many Americans. For the unusual show offers such a rich mix that it is practically guaranteed to be an interesting and, frequently, artistically valuable experience.

THE FIRST MERCEDES by Walter Gotschke, noted German illustrator, is one of nearly 100 paintings, prints, sculpture and auto-related artifacts that combine to form "Free Wheeling," an artistic celebration of the automobile at The Squibb Gallery through May 16th.

Paintings, photographs, sculpture, and artifacts from the automotive past reflect aspects of the auto, starting with the days when you needed a crank to get it going. Like their subject, the included works are an assemblage of bright and shiny colors; a display in which the interaction between the exhibited works creates the same sense of drama, movement and power that we often associate with their subject.

Eight Decades. The display spans eight decades of interest in the automobile. There are several early lithographs and Americans. For the unusual show offers such a rich mix that it is practically guaranteed to be an interesting and, frequently, artistically valuable experience.

There are also three dimensional works including a working miniature of a Simplex Speedcar, a wooden carving of a crushed fender that is amazing for its veracity and the skill of the carver, and a collection of mascots, the original metal figureheads which once graced the hoods of such splendid vehicles as a Hispano-Suiza and a Pierce Arrow and a Rolls Royce.

Although there are no sound effects in the gallery, the assembled works create their own dynamics and it almost seems as if you can hear the traffic, listen to the roar of the motors and share in the sense of energy that characterizes this interesting and entertaining display.

Photos at the Historical Society. An exhibition of photographs and measured drawings from the Historic American Buildings Survey brings attention to the significant and attractive architecture that exists in this state. The display describes itself as "an introduction to a small gleaning from the rich harvest of the... Survey in New Jersey." The small collection spans over one hundred years of style including the distinctive early Dutch and Quaker built houses as well as significant churches and other public buildings. Clearly written captions complement the fine architectural drawings that are part of the Survey. And, the photographs of such structures as Nassau Hall, the ornate Chalfonte Hotel in Cape May and taverns, churches and barns that reflect our history, combine nicely with captions and photos to allow

Seventh Annual Juried Photography Exhibition of the Princeton Art Association. The varied collection includes still life, portraiture, landscape, journalistic work and the interesting abstraction of detail that is done so well with the camera. The collection is a mixture of original and exciting images and a fair number of fairly ordinary clichés. The more creative work, however, is in the majority and offers some interesting examples of creative camera use.

At Art Masters
The juried exhibition of pastels, watercolors and oils sponsored by the Tri-County Art Association seems to have attracted only traditional artists. With one exception, the pair of larger-than-life studies of machinery and pipes by Larry Chestnut, the display deals with familiar subjects. Within the collection there are a few works that are outstanding for their craft. Most, however, are extremely conventional and, for those that favor tradition in a big way, this might be a satisfying display.

Lightweight Crew's Undefeated Record Will Be Challenged By Harvard and Yale Saturday; Heavies to Race Here Also

The waters of Carnegie Lake will be churning this Saturday morning and that prediction should hold true regardless of the weekend weather that descends on Princeton.

The one sure source of turbulence this week will be the crews, competing in critical meets in both the heavy and lightweight divisions. The highly regarded Princeton lightweight crew, who struggled to preserve their undefeated record last Saturday against Penn, will face the biggest challenge thus far this season, rowing against perennial powers Harvard and Yale in a race that should begin at about 11:45.

Fifteen minutes later, the Orange and Black heavyweights, who last Saturday defeated Harvard for the first time since 1957, will row against Cornell, the defending IRA champion.

SPORTS In Princeton

Princeton's good fortunes ran out the next day, as Yale opened water between the two boats halfway into the race. The Tigers mounted one of their customary charges and closed the gap in the final 300 meters but finished 2.3 seconds off the pace. Yale's winning time was nearly a half minute slower than that of the previous day — an indication of the adverse conditions that plagued the course on Sunday.

This Saturday's opponent, Cornell, lost to Navy by about four seconds last week, and has yet to win a race. Princeton, in comparison, lost to Navy by five seconds and has been gaining strength since then. Coach Larry Gluckman expects a close race. "Last year at this time

Cornell hadn't won a race against Cornell and then either it went on to win the IRAs," he said. "Cornell is a crew that gathers momentum during the season."

On the Road. While the crews or mother nature or some combination keep the Carnegie waters roiled, the other University sports teams, most of which are in the throes of disappointing seasons, will be traveling.

The baseball team, which endured two losses at the hands of Navy last Saturday and was scheduled to play at Rider this Tuesday, will face Cornell and Army in back-to-back doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday. The team returns to Clarke Field next Monday and Wednesday, May 2 and 4, for single games against Lafayette and Fairleigh Dickinson, both starting at 3 p.m.

The lacrosse team evened its record at 4-4 by defeating Harvard, 13-9, last Saturday. This weekend the Tigers travel to Ithaca to face powerful Cornell — not to mention the prospect of a losing season in the overall record and also within the Ivy League.

The track team, which had to win the final event, the mile relay, to salvage an 81-81 tie against Dartmouth, will compete this Friday and Saturday in the Penn Relays in Philadelphia.

The tennis team defeated Columbia and Penn last weekend to run its record to 9-6. It has a chance to add two more wins this weekend against Cornell and Army, but it will require a win over Harvard, next Thursday, May 5, on the University Courts to regain some measure of respectability in the Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Association.

Kordish Falters. Probably no Princeton athlete suffered more — psychologically if not physically — than senior pitcher Steve Kordish, who has been considered the one bright light on an otherwise lackluster pitching staff for the Tiger baseball team.

Earlier in the season Kordish turned in consecutive complete game victories, including a two-hit shutout against Harvard. Drafted in the 21st round of the professional baseball draft last year (by the Cleveland Indians), Kordish declined the invitation and remained at Princeton. As his record showed improvement, his professional prospects mounted. Major league scouts were spotted at Clarke Field. Kordish and his coach, Tom O'Connell, began to speculate with reporters about how high in this year's draft he might be selected.

By the time he took the mound against Navy on Saturday, Kordish was the central story in the Tigers' 1983 baseball team, which had thus far posted a 7-15-2 record. The righthander was named the student newspaper's "athlete of the week," and was spotlighted as the "senior survivor" in a feature on the youthful baseball team that appeared in the alumni magazine.

On Saturday the Midshipmen blew Kordish and the Tigers away, scoring 10 runs against him in less than four innings. As Kordish faltered so did his team, its record dropping to 7-17-2 overall and to 3-10-1 in EIBL play after the loss of the doubleheader. One can presume that fewer scouts will be on hand when Kordish pitches again, probably Against Hightstown last week, PHS had the tying runs on with no one out in the last inning. Trailing 4-1 (Princeton's lone run coming on a solo homer by Terry Phox in the fifth) Mickey Carnevale led off the inning with a double. After a walk, Phox cracked another double for Princeton's fourth hit, scoring Carnevale and leaving runners on second and third.

Sports in Princeton

Ram hurler Tim Dey threw three batters, the tail end of the lineup — on three consecutive pop ups. Dey ended up firing a four-hitter.

Dino D'Angelo took the loss for PHS, yielding seven hits. He gave up three in the first inning, including a two-run home by Ross Contiliano. The loss evened D'Angelo's record at 1-1, while the win was Dey's first without a loss. The win left the surprising Rams with a 3-0-1 record.

DOUBLEHEADER SPLIT
By Hun School Nine. The Hun School baseball team stayed above .500 last week when it split a doubleheader for a 4-3 record.

In the morning the Raiders lost a 4-3 decision to Ewing and then came back in the afternoon to top town rival Princeton Day School, 6-4. "It was a beautiful day (Saturday)," said Hun coach Bill McQuade. "We should have played four games to make up our ruminations."

With only one healthy veteran on its pitching staff, Pete Stam who figured in both decisions Saturday-Hun will host Pennington School this Wednesday, entertain Lawrenceville School Friday at 3:45 and Peddie the next day at 2:30. Tuesday, the Raiders will travel to Rutgers Prep. There will be stretch in May, McQuade reported, when, weather permitting, Hun will play eight games in 11 days to get in makeup contests.

Against Ewing, after the Blue Devils had scored the game's initial run in the second on a double and an error, Hun tied it in the third when Paul Pintella singled, stole second, advanced on Martin Summers single and came on a ground out by Chris Hunninghake.

Post 76 Registration

All candidates interested in playing Princeton Post 76 American Legion baseball should report Monday, May 2, at 7:30 p.m. to the Princeton Post 76 Legion Hall. All returning players must also attend.

All boys born on or after August 1, 1964 and who play for Princeton, West Windsor or Montgomery High School with a 921 or 924 phone number, or for private schools in the Princeton area, are eligible.

Things went smoothly for Hun, recalled McQuade, until the sixth. With one down, Hun pitcher Pete Stam misplayed a routine bunt for an error. A pinch-hit double was followed by a two-run single and another double. "Instead of getting out of the inning without scoring a run, they scored three," said McQuade.

Hun got to back in the last inning. After Owen Cane had stroked a single for his second hit, Pintella belted a two-run homer. "Paul really tattooed one; it must have gone 380 feet," said McQuade, "but we fell one run short."

Pintella, Summers and Cane each had two hits to account for six of the eight Hun collected off Ewing's Mike Viella who went the distance for his first win. Pintella also scored two runs, drive in two and stole two bases in a solid performance.

"Neither team could put the other one away," commented McQuade. Ewing (4-2-1), he added, is a big, physical team. "They got their licks in; they hit some shots—luckily some right at our players." The loss was Stam's first in four decisions.

Hun Takes 3-0 Lead. Against Princeton Day, Hun jumped to a 3-0 lead, scoring one run in the first on a Pintella triple and a single by pitcher Rich Stout, and plating two more in the second on a two-run double by Summers.

Stout, making his first start after being hit on the elbow by a pitch, survived a shaky first inning but settled down in the second. In the third, Stout twisted his knee. It seized up on him and he had to leave the game, prompting McQuade to comment, "He must have a black cloud over him."

McQuade called on Mark Okamoto and the junior making his second appearance failed to hold the Panthers. A walk was followed by two hits. Two runs scored.

In the next inning, PDS scored two more to take the lead, combining three singles and an error by Okamoto. With two out in the fourth, Stam turned to McQuade and said, "Hey, coach, my arm feels fine." "So I tested him," said McQuade.

Over the next three and a third innings, Stam yielded only two hits and walked one. In its half of the fourth, Hun tied the game at 4 when sophomore Seth Wheaton—the last of the Wheatons to attend Hun—got on base on an error by the PDS left fielder. Brother Matt Wheaton singled to center and Seth then scored on a passed ball.

Hun won the game with a pair of runs in the sixth. Seth Wheaton ended up on second after the Panther shortstop made a throwing error on his grounder. After two flyouts, Pintella came through with a single to right field, scoring Seth, and Summers followed with a single to score Pintella with an insurance run.

"It was a nice one to win," said McQuade. "PDS has a nice, scrappy ball club." Rubber arm Stam got the win in relief.

How many pitches are left in Stam's arm may be answered when Hun enters that eight-games-in-eleven day period. "If Stout doesn't come back, I may be praying for more rain," McQuade said.

HUN VS. PERKIOMEN
In Lacrosse. The Hun School lacrosse team is scheduled to entertain Perkiomen Saturday at 2, but the Raiders will need an assist from the weather.

Coach Dave Faus reported that Hun's low lying field near Stony Brook is so saturated with water that unless there is a spell of dry weather, Hun may have to play its home games on some other field. Last week, he said, the field was under a couple of feet of water.

With the Fair Lawn High game a victim of wet grounds last week, the only game the Raiders were involved in was a 4-3 loss to Edison — Hun's third without a win. "We showed some signs of coming

Here's an example of how a person can overcome what seems to be a hopeless obstacle... Back in the 1930s, there was a promising left-handed baseball pitcher named Ed Head... But before he could reach the majors, Ed was in a bus accident and his left arm was crushed... He could never pitch effectively again with that left arm... What could he do? ... With fierce determination and constant practice he taught himself to pitch right-handed... And he practiced long enough, and became so good that he was able to pitch in the big leagues! ... Ed Head — as a righthander — pitched for the Dodgers from 1940 to 1946, and won 27 games — an amazing performance.

I bet you didn't know YOUR THUMB PRINT and the man's next door are as different as your respective insurance needs.

Here's a surprising fact about one of the most under-rated big league baseball players of all-time, Harmon Killebrew... Many fans don't realize that Killebrew hit MORE career home runs than Mickey Mantle, Ted Williams, Ernie Banks, Mel Ott, Lou Gehrig, Stan Musial or Joe DiMaggio... Despite that, Killebrew is NOT in the Hall of Fame and is not often mentioned when great sluggers are discussed... Killebrew played in the majors from 1954 to 1975 and hit 573 homers.

along," observed Faus. "We'll have to just keep plugging away and try to keep our heads up."

Hun was leading Edison, 3-2, into the fourth quarter on a pair of goals by Chris Black and one by Chris Goodyear until the home team scored with three minutes left to tie the game at 3.

The with the clock winding down, Edison took the ball out of bounds, brought it up field and scored with seven seconds left to play. "Penalties hurt us. They scored twice with a man up," said Faus.

SHOT PUT TEAM WINS
At Highland Relays. At the annual Highland Park Relays held Saturday, Princeton High won the shot event with a combined distance of 133-6.

The Little Tigers' standout P.J. Young uncorked a toss of 54-4. Ken McKellar contributed a 44-11 effort and Elliott Liverman added a 34-2. Princeton High competed in the Group I and Group II school division.

PHS also grabbed two third places in the competition. Brothers Steve and Mike Schwab joined Tom Perkins and Bill Bushnell to win the two-mile event with a clocking of 8:14.9. A combined time of 3:40.1 earned Stephan Fletcher, Ed Katz, Eddie Rice and Mike Schwab a third in the sprint medley.

The Little Tigers will next be at West Windsor Tuesday for a league dual meet starting at 3:45.

MAKE OR BREAK TIME
For PHS Softball. Still looking for its first win, the Princeton High School lacrosse team will play three home games this week in what could well be make or break time for new coach Peter Larsen and the Little Tigers.

This Wednesday afternoon, PHS will entertain George School at 3:45 and Summit on Saturday at 1. Then on Monday, Lawrenceville School — always a formidable opponent for the Little Tigers — will be here for a 3:45 contest.

In its last outing on Saturday, PHS lost its fourth straight to Montclair, 10-7. Junior attack Chris Carrington led the PHS attack with three goals and an assist. Scott Gabrielsen contributed two goals and an assist and Willie Whittaker had a goal and two assists for PHS.

FOUR GAMES AT HOME

The Girls Lacrosse Team. The Princeton High School girls lacrosse team, the only public high school in Mercer County to play girls lacrosse, will play four home games this week.

The Little Tigers, which raised their record to 4-0 following two wins last week, will entertain Princeton Day School this Wednesday afternoon at 3:45 (the two town rivals split a pair of games last year) and Morris Township Thursday at 4.

Saturday morning at 11, PHS will host Montville and on Monday Chatham will be here for a contest at 4. The four games will carry the Little Tigers half-way into their 17-game schedule.

Against Montclair Thursday, PHS junior Alison Fraker scored four first-half goals to stake the Little Tigers to a 6-1 halftime lead, as PHS went on to win, 8-5. Lisa Blair added a pair of goals and Harper Hoff and Erica Gabrielsen one each for the victors, who have outscored the opposition 58-16 in its first four games.

Senior Ann Sutphin playing her first year as goalie had 16 saves for PHS, while another senior, Connie Clobossey, played an excellent game on defense for the Blue and White. Montclair had made a game of it by scoring three quick goals in the second half against the PHS reserves.

Two days earlier, PHS routed Peddie, 16-4, leading 11-1 at the half. In all, 10 players joined the PHS scoring parade against the 2-2 visitors.

Scoring two goals each were Hoff, Blair, Gabrielsen, Anna Navarro, Adriane Vandenhuvel and Jaunnie Parsells. Sylvia Greenspan, Jenny Pickens, Pam Jennings and Fraker all added single goals.

95 On Squad. Off its early showing, it seems certain that coach Joyce Jones has assembled another contender in a long line of fine PHS teams. At last count she reported that she had 95 players on her varsity, junior varsity and freshman teams.

Last year, PHS compiled an 11-4 seasonal record and qualified for the state tournament where it was defeated by Moorestown in the semi-finals.

In its second game, after a 26-3 rout of Columbia in its opener (this is only Columbia's second year in the sport) Jones commented, "we defined the talent and the potential we have — plus our weaknesses."

"As a coach of three sports, I would say this is my most improved team as far as stick work and concepts. I'm not sure we're ready psychologically." She described this year's squad as a "very young team."

EVENING TENNIS STARTS
On Sunday. As of this

Sunday evening, evening tennis will be available at Community Park Tennis Courts, and season ticket holders will be eligible to play under the lights.

Courts may be reserved from 7:30 - 9 a.m. or 9 - 10:30 p.m. Reservation sheets are posted 1½ days in advance at 4:30 p.m. at the tennis courts. Those persons wishing to purchase season tickets may do so at the Recreation Office (Monday-Friday 9 to 5) or at courtside by check only.

For additional information, call the Recreation Department at 921-9480.

STILL NO RELIEF

For PHS Softball Team. Princeton High softball coach Doug Snyder, who expects this season to be punctuated by a couple of victories at most, is still looking for that first win.

Last week the weather forced cancellation of everything but a game with Hightstown, which the Little Tigers lost, 22-3. Once again, the first inning was the best for PHS, as the Little Tigers scored three runs to take a 3-0 lead.

Once again, however, the lead was short lived. Hightstown (3-1) answered with nine runs in its half of the first inning, scored seven more in the second and six more in the third off pitcher March Murry. The 15-run rule was invoked after the fifth inning, bringing the game to an end.

Ram pitcher Barbara Malloy tossed a one-hitter as Monica Greenland had the only hit for PHS. Lisa Byrne and Gail Zeilen each hit homers for the Rams, who pounded out 11 off Murray.

PHS NETMEN ARE 6-0

Top Moorestown. Hightstown. The Princeton High School tennis team kept its record perfect at 6-0 with wins over Moorestown and Hightstown last week.

Moorestown, which has given the Little Tigers all they could handle in previous years, fell meekly Friday, 4-1.

As expected, Hightstown was no match for the powerful Little Tigers and bowed, 5-0.

The Leschly brothers remained undefeated with impressive wins against Moorestown. Junior Jacob Leschly, playing the number one singles, defeated Jon Dubrow, 6-2, 6-2, while number two singles, Mark Leschly, a freshman, handled Jeff Zeiger, 6-4, 6-2.

The visitors' Howard Snyder defeated Princeton's Safi Bahcall, 7-5, 6-4, in a close match for Moorestown's only point. In doubles play, Keith Goldfield and Rob Dunham were extended to three sets by Rob Hanson and Spencer Levin before winning, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3. Tim Kingston and Andy Phillips won, 6-3, 6-3.

Against Hightstown both Jacob and Mark Leschly won 6-0, 6-0, and Bahcall triumphed, 6-2, 6-4.

FUNDS ARE SOUGHT

By Princeton Soccer Club. For the first time since it was founded 10 years ago, the Princeton Soccer Club has announced a spring fund-raising campaign.

The campaign began in March to coincide with the opening of its season of play in the Central Jersey Soccer League. The season runs through December.

The Princeton team is comprised of high school and college players from Princeton and the surrounding area. It has been a valuable aid to college players who need a place to play off-season and as a training opportunity for younger players.

Until now, the cost of maintaining the club — uniforms, transportation, balls and nets and referee and linesmen fees — has been met by the players and interested private individuals. The club now seeks wider support from the Princeton business community as it tries to increase the visibility of soccer nationally and continue to offer an opportunity for many young people in the Princeton area to grow in the sport.

Those interested in supporting the team can send their tax-exempt contributions to the Princeton Soccer Team care of Albert Kren, 172 Alexander Street, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

anticipated the furious opposition that erupted. "Who wants a bunch of women telling us what to do?" was a frequent male remark. There were charges of undue pressure by the League, charges that the League had abandoned its traditional non-partisan stand.

Jean Labatut, respected architect and professor of architecture, found a footnote error in a meticulously researched report on consolidation which the League had prepared.

"Probably as a result of overenthusiasm for their crusade," Professor Labatut wrote in a letter to the editor of the Princeton Herald, "the charming emulations of Eleanor of Aquitaine went as far as using the art of camouflage in which the practice of deception is an indispensable tool."

League members were furious. They retorted that Professor Labatut had missed the point, and that if he were objecting to women working for good government, "he lost his battle 33 years ago!"

In turn, an anonymous letter-writer called the League's rebuttal "unjustified vitriolic sarcasm."

Becomes Area League. In the '60s as the area began to grow, the Princeton League became the "area League," including members in Lawrence, West Windsor and Montgomery.

The peak of membership in the Princeton League came in 1972, with 400.

Two years later, the count had dropped to 200. League officials had asked inactive members to drop out because it cost too much to keep them on the rolls. Today there are about 200.

And today there is a growing demand to take on more and more issues. Priorities are essential. Financial problems are vexing.

But it is the conclusion of Ms. Griffin, and of many League members that the organization has been an important training-ground for career oriented women who needed experience in leadership, needed practice in building self confidence.

"I used more skills in the League than in any of my jobs," one member says. "I learned 'way over and above what I had from my masters degree'."

It is a new way of looking at an organization, so long respected in Princeton for its involvement in serious community affairs.

Oppenheimer Letter Revealed Concerning Institute's Plans

In a letter written in 1960, the late J. Robert Oppenheimer, then director of the Institute for Advanced Study, assured the owner of the Updike farm that the Institute wanted to buy the property to protect it from development.

Rosemary Blair, speaking for the Delaware and Raritan Canal Coalition, read the letter to the Planning Board last Tuesday as the board listened again to plans the Institute has for building 400 to 600 housing units on land which includes the Updike farm.

Mrs. Blair said Mr. Updike sold the farm to the Institute in 1969 in order to keep it from being developed, and the Institute had agreed to this.

The Planning Board was scheduled to continue its Institute hearings this Tuesday.

At last week's hearing, members of a coalition of Princeton residents which hopes to acquire the Institute's development rights, expected Institute director Harry Woolf to announce to the Planning Board that he is negotiating with the group.

Barbara Hill Lists Reasons For Dropping Out of Race

Hinting at dissatisfaction with the internal workings of the Democratic party — in the Borough, at least — Barbara Hill talked this week about her reasons for withdrawing from the mayoralty race.

Having announced that she would run, before Barbara Sigmund made her own announcement of candidacy, Ms. Hill decided last week that she would not file. If she had done so, there would have been a June primary contest with Mrs. Sigmund for the Democratic nomination for mayor. Ms. Hill was re-elected to Council last year for a second three-year term. She is Borough Council President.

Both parties, in Borough and Township, filled their slates for the November elections.

"In all I've been involved in, in the Borough," Ms. Hill said, "We've prided ourselves on what I'm going to call 'genteel' politics, but in this particular race, that's not the case. You'd have had to be a good street-fighter, and this is not my forte."

Dinner, Symposium Mark 85th Birthday of Henry DeWolf Smyth

The 85th birthday of Henry DeWolf Smyth, one of Princeton University's most distinguished alumni and member of its faculty for 42 years, was marked last weekend with a symposium and a dinner organized by the Physics Department. Dr. Smyth was born in Clinton, N.Y., on May 1, 1898, and has lived in Princeton almost continuously from the time he was seven years old.

The birthday was a time for colleagues to note his accomplishments as a physicist and physics teacher, longtime chairman of the Physics Department who took part in the war time research here and in Chicago that led to the making of the first atomic bomb. It was an opportunity for Datus Smith, former director of the Princeton University Press, to tell again the story of how the first official account of the development of the bomb written by Dr. Smyth was released to the public five days after Hiroshima and published within a month by the Press-becoming known the world over as the "Smyth Report."

The symposium was also a forum for Sigvard Eklund, director general of the International Atomic Agency for 20 years, to give a substantive speech on the agency, a branch of the United Nations headquartered in Vienna to monitor nuclear developments around the world. Dr. Smyth served as the U.S. representative to the IAEA for nine years and is credited with obtaining international agreement on a system of safeguards to prevent diversion of peacetime nuclear facilities to military use. These negotiations paved the way for the Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1972.

After the tributes and the toast, Dr. Smyth responded with a talk of his own. In a light vein he reminisced about his early career, noting, however, that the stages of it were punctuated by war, and more somberly, he offered his current views on the bomb he helped develop and publicize.

"Make no mistake," he told the gathering, "those who worked on the bomb hoped to find a principle that would make such a bomb impossible. This hope was not realized. The test at Alamogordo was spectacularly successful."

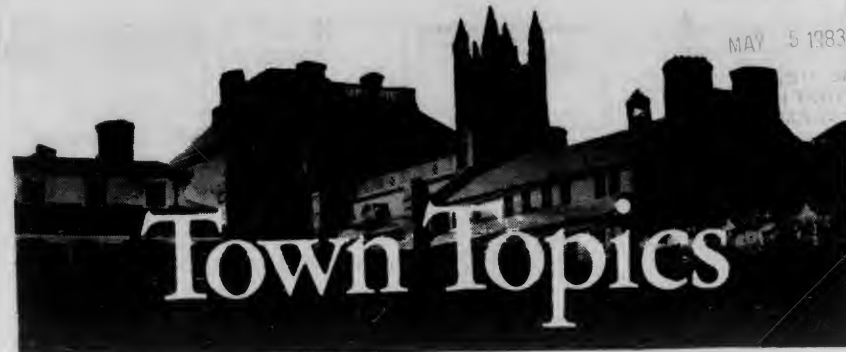

Anticipating that success, he wrote in his report, "the future possibilities of such explosives are appalling, and their effects on future wars and international affairs are of fundamental importance. Here is a new tool for mankind, a tool of unimaginable destructive power. Its development raises many questions that need to be answered ... These questions are not political and social questions and the answers to them may affect all mankind for generations."

Asserting that the questions have only been partly answered, he gave five specific recommendations:

- the nuclear freeze movement should be "vigorously supported as a first step";
